Wife of Well-Known Insurance Man Is Taken to Local Hospital in Critical Condition.

E. F. SCHULZ HELD IN $1,000 BOND

LeCraw Children Claim Auto Ran Up on Curb, Striking Mother Who Was Reading Letter.

Struck down by an automobile while standing in the driveway of her Garden Hills home late Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Julia Adams LeCraw, wife of Roy LeCraw, well known Atlanta insurance man, was rushed to a local hospital where surgeons announced that her condition was critical. Suffering from a fractured skull and possible internal injuries, late at night Mrs. LeCraw had not fully regained consciousness.

E. F. Schulz, of 2855 Peachtree road, driver of the automobile, was taken to Fulton tower by County Patrolman Lyle, Hughes and Stovall, where a charge of driving at an excessive rate of speed was docketed against him. He was released after posting a $1,000 bond.

Conway and Veasy LeCraw, aged 5 and 3 respectively, were standing at their mother's side near the mailbox in front of the home at the time of the accident. They told their father that Mrs. LeCraw had just taken two letters from the box and was reading one of them when the car rounded the corner, ran up on the curb and struck their mother, knocking her several feet.

After hitting Mrs. LeCraw, the car, apparently out of control, swerved across the street, went up over the curb and rolled over an embankment, police were told.

Mr. Schulz was taken to his home after he had posted bond with county officials and late Thursday night was under the care of his family physician. He received cuts about the hand and was suffering from shock, it was stated.

According to the LeCraw boys' story of the accident, they escaped injury only by a few inches when their mother was struck down.

U. S., STATE SPLIT ON CROP REPORTS

Talmadge's Cotton Estimate Causes Federal Bureau To Sever Relations With Department.

The Georgia crop reporting bureau of the United States department of agriculture has discontinued cooperation with the state department of agriculture because Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture, recently made public an estimate of the Georgia cotton crop based on figures he obtained through his own department, it was announced Thursday by Commissioner Talmadge.

Cessation of cooperation means that the federal crop reporting bureau hereafter will not be connected in any way with estimates that are made by the state department of agriculture, it was announced. Commissioner Talmadge stated that the federal bureau's latest estimate of the cotton crop in Georgia is 55,000 bales lower than his estimate made one month ago. At that time the federal estimate was 1,000,000 bales and it was this estimate which Commissioner Talmadge made an independent investigation. This investigation brought to him 1,450 reports and on these reports he estimated Georgia's cotton crop at 541,000 bales, or 210,000 bales less than the federal bureau's estimate.

"Now the federal bureau comes out with its new estimate and it is significant that this estimate is 995,000 bales or 65,000 bales less than its estimate one month ago. It is furthermore significant that the weather conditions of the past month have been absolutely favorable to cotton and were such as to lead to an increased number of bales. It is also significant that the federal bureau's estimate for the entire cotton belt is lower by 800,000 bales than it was one month ago."

Commissioner Talmadge said he went to Washington to confer with Commissioner Jardine and to tell officials and said after he had informed these officials that he made his estimates entirely independently from information gathered by the federal bureau that they informed him he would have to accept the bureau's figures. Commissioner Talmadge declared that he declined to agree to accept the bureau's figures and came back to Atlanta. The first notice that he received that the department had ceased to cooperate with his department was in a notice the department sent out to its agents throughout the state.

Obregon Assassin Sentenced To Die; Nun Gets 20 Years

Jose de Leon Toral, Murderer of President, Says He Is Satisfied With Verdict.

COURT IS SCENE OF OUTBREAKS

Spectators Cheer Verdict as Jurymen Ask Guards; Political Murder Defense Fails To Hold.

San Angel, Mexico, November 8.—(AP)—A jury in the district court of San Angel this afternoon returned a verdict of guilty in the case of Jose de Leon Toral, charged with murder of General Alvaro Obregon, Mexico's president-elect, and the case of the nun Concepcion, accused as "intellectual author" of the crime.

A sentence of death by firing squad for Toral, and 20 years imprisonment for Mother Concepcion were handed immediately by the judge of the court. The defense attorney, Sodi, announced he would appeal to the Mexican supreme court.

Toral's only motion as the verdict was read was to wet his lips with his tongue. Mother Concepcion dropped her eyes and sat motionless. Both were calm. A crowd of one thousand cheered and applauded the verdict.

The court allowed the defense five days in which to perfect its appeal. It was said that if the San Angel court's verdict is sustained by the higher tribunal the date and place for the execution of Toral probably will be fixed by the governor of the federal district.

The verdict of guilty for Toral was unanimous, but Mother Concepcion was convicted by a vote of eight to one, the jury being composed of nine men—mostly workmen. Under Mexican law a majority verdict is sufficient to convict.

When the verdict had been announced everybody in the courtroom stood and officers in the room saluted with their swords, the blades flashing in the late afternoon light, while policemen stood at attention and saluted with their hands.

As the judge finished the pronouncement of his sentence Toral arose and asked, "May I speak?"

"The judge answered: 'No, you can speak later.'"

More guards formed around Toral and Mother Concepcion as from the outside could be heard the cheers of a thousand or more who had gathered there awaiting a verdict.

In the next confusion in the courtroom a spokesman for the jury asked the judge to give them guards to escort them home. The judge answered that this was unnecessary, but the jury insisted with the words "there are lots of fanatics around."

"You have performed your duty and returned a fair verdict," the judge answered him. "The nation applauds you and you do not need guards."

The jurymen reluctantly accepted the judge's decision and departed without further incident.

ELECTRIC HEARING TO BE HELD DEC. 4

Action of Commission Is Made After Power Company Presents Side in Rate Revision Plan.

After representatives of the Georgia Power company, headed by H. M. Atkinson, chairman, and Preston S. Arkwright, president, had filed the company's side of the electric power rate revision case heard by the state public service commission Thursday, the commission, at the request of City Attorney James L. Mayson, of Atlanta, postponed further hearing in the case until December 4.

This action by the commission was similar to that taken by that body in the gas revision rate case heard Wednesday, when a postponement until December 4 was ordered at the request of the city attorney of Atlanta. In both cases the postponement was granted to give the city attorney and others interested in the case time to make a study of the answers filed by the power company.

World Welcome Revision. President Arkwright told the commission that his company would welcome a revision of rates on electric power in Georgia which would not reduce the net revenues of the company but which would remove discrimination. He characterized the present rate system "obsolete and unscientific."

"At present there are 22 residential rate schedules used in Georgia," Mr. Arkwright said.

It was pointed out further by the power company official that even in

G. O. P. CAPTURES WORKABLE MARGIN IN BOTH HOUSES

Will Have Majority of 15 in Senate and 99 in House To Carry Out Pledge.

Washington, November 8.—(AP)—Republicans have established clear majorities in the next congress in both senate and house but have failed to keep full pace with the record-breaking sweep of their party held, Herbert Hoover.

Almost complete returns tonight showed that the new congress, going into office after next March 4, would be divided as follows: Senate, republicans, 55; democrats, 39; farmer-labor, 1; vacant, 1. House, republicans, 267; democrats, 167; farmer-labor, 1.

Republicans held all of their 13 senate seats at issue in this election but captured only seven of the 20 democratic positions at stake. The senate is almost evenly divided at present.

Win 27 Places in House.

In the house election with all 435 seats involved, the republicans won 27 places now held by democrats, and replaced the lone socialist, Victor Berger, of Wisconsin, and one of the two farmer-labor members, William L. Carr, of Minnesota. Democrats succeeded in capturing three seats now held by republicans, one each in Indiana, Rhode Island and West Virginia.

Despite these increased majorities, neither branch of congress will show as large a republican membership as the congress elected in the 1920 landslide for Warren G. Harding. Then the republicans were given a margin of 22 votes in the senate and of almost 165 in the house. Four years ago when President Coolidge was elected the republicans won a majority of 17 in the senate but a margin of only 60 in the house.

There were 435 house seats and 35 senate seats to be filled in the fall elections and in these 470 contests there were only 39 switches in political makeup.

Returns Nearly All In. These calculations are made with returns from all but five districts in the new congress now held by democrats and count these seats as democratic until final returns are received.

They repudiated the house seats as still in doubt, those of Representative Wurzbach, of Texas, and of Representative Beck, of Pennsylvania. While Herbert Hoover went into the south and captured North Carolina, Virginia, Florida, Texas and Tennessee, these states yielded only a half victory to the republicans. Missouri also elected a republican from the north district and close contests were still on in some others.

Gains in Ohio. Republicans picked up three democratic seats in Ohio and two in New York. The party's other gains were one each in the states of Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Tennessee, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

The apparent defeat of Senator Neely, democrat, of West Virginia, by Henry D. Hatfield in late returns to New York gave the republicans their seventh democratic seat in the senate. Virtually none of the leaders in either party were scratched by election, but Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the democratic leader, was elected in southern states.

Kentucky and Missouri were subjected to the major raids of the republicans for democratic seats, each state replacing six of its present democratic members in the house. Missouri also elected a republican senator to succeed the democratic veteran, James A. Reed, who has retired.

For the first time in years Virginia will have republican representation in the house, three members being elected from that state. North Carolina also elected a republican from the north district and close contests were still on in some others.

Selection of the site on which the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company will locate its $25,000,000 tire manufacturing plant planned for the south has narrowed down from seven or eight possible cities to two, of which Atlanta is one, according to information obtained from Ivan Allen, head of the Industrial Bureau of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. The other possible location is an Alabama city, Mr. Allen said.

Mr. Allen, who up to this time has been reticent on the progress being made by the industrial bureau in an effort to have the great rubber industry factors locate the proposed huge southern plant in or near Atlanta, has been in constant contact with President Litchfield and other officials of the tire company and Thursday disclosed details of the strong bid being made by local interests to obtain the plant for Atlanta.

Days Narrowed Down.

"Just 10 days ago, Atlanta was one of seven or eight cities being considered by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company as possible sites for the huge southern manufacturing plant," Mr. Allen told The Constitution. "Today it seems certain that the plant will go either to Atlanta or a certain city in Alabama."

While enthusiastic for the opportunity that Atlanta has of obtaining the largest manufacturing plant to be built thus far in the south, Mr. Allen refused to speculate on the relative chances of the two remaining location choices.

HOOVER TOTAL VOTE TO PASS 20 MILLIONS

Majority Over Smith Expected To Reach Seven Millions When Count Is Complete.

DEMOCRATIC VOTE OVER 14 MILLIONS

Belated Returns Continue To Pile Up Margin of Victory for G. O. P. in All Sections.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Tabulation of scattered additional returns from 21 states has pushed Hoover's national total past 19,375,000 and Smith's over 13,700,000.

With the votes of Tuesday's polling still far from complete, the unofficial standing last night was: Hoover, 19,376,449; Smith, 13,717,604.

The president-elect added more than 1,076,000 during the preceding 24 hours and Governor Smith about 730,000.

The compilation of the missing returns in many cases, especially in southern and border states, brought forth large leads for the republican president-elect.

There was little likelihood of any shift of electoral votes of any state from either Hoover's column or that of Alfred E. Smith, his defeated democratic opponent, as a result of the vote from the districts yet untabulated.

G. O. P. Increased Lead in Congress.

The sweep of the Hoover victory brought into congress increased republican working majorities in both the senate and house. And the interest in last Tuesday's election to which tight races needed for decision the tabulation of the complete vote.

Among the returns during the day from southern and border states, Hoover showed a gain of 1,000 in Texas with a majority of 17,200 from 251 out of 253 counties; Virginia, a 1,965-142 majority with 1,624 out of 1,265 precincts reported; Oklahoma, a majority of 159,531 with only 244 precincts missing; North Carolina, 28,000 lead with 300 precincts unreported and Missouri, a 163,446 majority with 158 precincts missing.

New York Vote. In New York, Governor Smith's home state, Hoover registered a plurality of 97,492 with only 22 districts reported.

He was swept in by a record-breaking majority of 282,015 in Indiana on complete returns, while on virtually complete tabulations in Illinois he received a 421,150 majority and in Iowa more than 225,000 lead.

The president-elect plans to reappear from his home in Palo Alto, Cal., while the long and varied career of Hoover, the man, added greatly to the congratulatory heap. Although many messages came from strangers, from public officials and from persons whom he has met during his service as secretary of commerce, there were many hundreds from former mining associates in various parts of the world.

Atlanta and Alabama City All Left in Race for Goodyear Plant, Allen Announces.

Selection of the site on which the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company will locate its $25,000,000 tire manufacturing plant planned for the south has narrowed down from seven or eight possible cities to two, of which Atlanta is one, according to information obtained from Ivan Allen, head of the Industrial Bureau of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. ## TWO YOUTHS ON PROBATION IN ATTEMPT TO ROB CHURCH ARRESTED IN HULME KILLING

HOOVER RECEIVES CONGRATULATIONS ON HIS ELECTION

Notables of Both Parties Wire Support; Secret Service Men Begin Duty of Protection.

BY W. G. RAGSDALE. Associated Press Staff Writer. Stanford University, Calif., November 8.—(AP)—In the quiet serenity of his home on San Juan hill which had been transformed overnight from the residence of a private citizen to the domicile of the president-elect of the nation, Herbert Hoover passed today into the period of relaxation which will refresh him for the task ahead.

The newly elected chief executive laid aside all thoughts of the future as he gave himself completely to the rest which will draw back some of the energy he spent in campaigning. Except for reading and answering some of the hundreds of congratulatory telegrams which continued to stream into his home, Hoover gave no thought to the race behind or the future task of taking up the reins of government.

The president-elect was out at his usual early hour to breakfast with Mrs. Hoover while the roof tops in the valley below still were aglow with the first frost of winter. After a simple meal they donned wraps for a walk into the hills as they had done yesterday, but today the privacy had disappeared into the cloak of officialdom and secret service men followed along behind them.

Their return carried them back to the same home in which they had enjoyed the friendliness of their neighbors during the years they have lived there, but the easy comings and goings now were barred, the doors guarded and the winding road around the hill blocked to all those who could not convince the secret service men of their right of passage.

Curious Eyes a Glimpse. Hundreds of curious persons drove up the curving roadways to the top of the hill during the day, seeking a glimpse of the home of the president-elect. But the house itself was hidden behind the crest of the hill and could be seen from but one point on the road.

While Hoover himself rested during the day, a corps of stenographers and secretaries were busy replying to the hundreds of telegrams and letters. The more important telegrams were answered in kind, but there were hundreds from strangers to whom brief letters of thanks were written. Each of these, however, will carry an autograph to the well-wisher in the form of the personal signature of the president-elect.

The long and varied career of Hoover, the man, added greatly to the congratulatory heap. Although many messages came from strangers, from public officials and from persons whom he has met during his service as secretary of commerce, there were many hundreds from former mining associates in various parts of the world.

ALBANY STILL HERO TO ALBANY FOLK

Happy Warrior, Smiling at Defeat, Cries When Capital Receives Him With Giant Ovation.

Albany, N. Y., November 8.—(AP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith, the vanquished "Happy Warrior," returning tonight to the state capital after his two-month political battle, received an ovation from Albany residents which brought tears to his eyes.

A crowd jammed union station as his train pulled in at 7:31 o'clock and hundreds swarmed about the station's doors to get a glimpse of him. As the governor stepped to the platform from William F. Kenney's private car, the "St. Nicholas," now sharing fame with the derby itself, a National Guard band struck up the battle song, "Sidelwinds of New York."

After a triumphal procession through the main streets, the governor, standing on the veranda of the executive mansion, Mrs. Smith by his side, told the throng which milled over the spacious front lawn that, though he had had "wonderful receptions all over the country, this welcome home to his adopted city was the warmest of them all."

Fully an hour before the upstate special bearing the governor's car arrived crowds gathered about the station, and at 7:30 the building was literally packed to the roof.

As the governor with Mrs. Smith, their elder daughter, Mrs. John Adams Warner, and Major Warner, superintendent of New York state police, stepped from the train, they were greeted officially by Mayor John Boyd Thatcher, of Albany, who was accompanied by Mrs. Thatcher.

Through a scene which approached pandemonium, the governor's party, escorted by state and city police, struggled through the mob in the station, with familiar cries of "Hello,

Japan Will Make History At Dual Rites Tomorrow

BY GLENN BABE. Associated Press Correspondent. Kyoto, Japan, November 8.—For the first time, as far as the records of the empire show, an empress consort of Japan will be formally enthroned together with her husband when, on November 10, the Empress Nagako mounts her "curtained throne," in the same ceremony in which the Emperor Hirohito takes his place on the "high august seat," the throne of a "lineal descent unbroken for ages eternal."

She will not, however, be the first empress to take her place on the throne, for of the 123 sovereigns who have preceded her husband in the line of the sun goddess eleven have been women. These empresses in their own right, depending on no male Most of them lived during Europe's dark ages, when the position of women in Japan was higher than it is today, but the last of the 11, Go Sakuramachi, reigned as late as 1770. But prior to the restoration of 1868, when the emperors were restored to full sovereignty, the consort of a ruler, male or female, was not considered to share in the reign as now.

This conception of the empress consort sharing, in lesser degree, in the powers and glories of the reign came in with the influx of Occidental ideas during the reign of Emperor Meiji, grandfather of the present ruler. This year is the second enthronement since that time, but in the first enthronement under the existing regulations, that of Emperor Taisho in 1915, the Empress Sadako was prevented from participating because she was about to become a mother. Less than a month after ceremonies at Kyoto she gave birth to her fourth son, Prince Sumi.

The number of women witnesses to the great ceremonies at Kyoto this week will be larger than ever before. They will number about 275, including princesses of the blood imperial, wives of high officials, and two women who have gained their invitations by virtue of their own distinguished careers. Madame Koko Ando, of the Tokyo Academy of Music, and Madame Kinako Horieuchi, of the Tokyo Higher Normal School for Girls. Both hold high court rank, which, rather than titles of nobility, determines standing at imperial functions. Certain officials of the highest rank receive invitations to the houses of parliament, holders of the first court rank, certain veteran statesmen now out of office, but formerly highly placed, members of the privy council.

In nearly all the rites of the enthronement the Empress Nagako accompanied by her husband.

Empress Dowager Nis Sadako, mother of the emperor, who might have been the first imperial consort to be formally crowned but was not, will have no part in the Kyoto ceremonies. She is still far from old, only 44, and wields an influence in court matters not generally appreciated. Having given birth to four healthy sons, she is honored as oriental women who thus perpetuate the family, but her strength of character and vigor of mind are responsible primarily for her influence. However, there is no place in the Kyoto ceremonies for the widow of the dead monarch, and her part is limited to supplementary rites in the Tokyo palace.

Women's costumes in the Kyoto enthronement will range from magnificent court robes of a thousand years ago to the latest creations of occidental fashion centers. As she ascends her throne, the empress will wear a five-fold kimono with a comparatively short tunic, all of white silk damask and cut in the fashion of the medieval court of Kyoto. The princesses of the blood will be similarly attired. Japanese ladies who attend by invitation will wear a long skirted dress, the modern full-length kimono, or may wear evening gowns of occidental style.

The diplomatic corps will wear formal evening dresses.

BLAST IN FACTORY KILLS SEVENTEEN

Shoe Toe Plant at Lynn, Mass., Explodes Spreading Death in Factory Village.

Lynn, Mass., November 8.—(AP)—Seventeen persons were dead and seven others were in a serious condition at the Lynn hospital tonight as a result of an explosion and fire which destroyed the plant of the Preble Box Toe company and damaged six nearby dwellings in East Lynn today.

While both state and city authorities were endeavoring to determine the cause of the disaster, firemen were continuing a search of the ruins, although they expressed belief that the bodies of all the dead had been recovered.

Twelve of the victims were killed outright by the explosion or burned to death in the fire which followed it, while four others died after being taken to the hospital.

Six of the dead and one of those now at the hospital were members of the family of Harry Blaney, who lived in a two-tenement house within 10 feet of the rear of the plant. His wife, Mrs. Lillian Blaney, and four of their children were burned to death in the fire which swept their home after the explosion. These children were: Thelma, 13; Arthur, 10; Helen, 7, and Harriet, aged 6 months.

Another Blaney child, Vivian, 15, was rescued from the burning house while still alive but died a few hours later at the hospital. The father was in a serious condition at the hospital tonight. Two other members of the family, Harry, Jr., 17, and Norman, 14, were also taken to the hospital in a serious condition after treatment. Two other children had left the house just before the explosion occurred.

The others who lost their lives were employees of the Box Toe plant, a one-story building of concrete construction. The plant manufactured box toes for shoes, using celluloid and other explosive materials in the process. The plant employs about 20, but several workmen had not reported when the explosion occurred.

POLICE CONFIDENT HULME SHOOTING WAS ACCIDENTAL

Paul Seymour and Robert Pettit Are Being Held at Station Under Blanket Charge of Suspicion.

SHOT AT SIGNBOARD, PRISONERS ASSERT

Two Youths Make Sworn Statements That They Did Not Know Their Bullet Killed Hulme.

Paul Seymour, 19, of 587 Willow street, and Robert B. Pettit, 19, of 1381 Morningside drive, two youths who now are under probation on the charge of attempting to rob a Methodist church late in the summer, were arrested at their homes Thursday night in connection with the shooting and killing of Paul Hulme, 16-year-old Tech high student, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hulme, 787 East avenue, last Saturday afternoon.

At police station, where the two boys were taken by Detectives C. L. Taylor and W. J. Stephens, they made sworn statements of the entire occurrence in which they admitted that one of them had fired two shots at a signboard not far from the spot where Hulme's dead body was found, but denied that they knew either of the two bullets had caused his death.

Shooting Accidental. After questioning the youths at length, and docketing a blanket charge of suspicion against them, arresting officers stated that there was no evidence of intent to kill and that in their opinion the shooting was accidental. No decision has been reached as yet as to the definite charge to be placed against them except that Pettit will be charged with firing a pistol within the city limits.

Seymour and Pettit, according to the police, were arrested several months ago in the case of a Methodist church on Peachtree street in an apparent attempt at robbery. Notified by neighbors of the shooting, officers arrived on the scene in the early morning hours after chasing the boys all over the church finally managed to corner and arrest them. They were taken into court before Judge John D. Humphries, and given their freedom. According to Detective Taylor, one of the conditions of the probation was for 12 months by Judge John D. Humphries, and given their freedom. According to Detective Taylor,

DRY LAW VINDICATED, DR. A. J. BARTON SAYS

Anti-Saloon and Anti-Smith
Leader Lauds Election of Hoover.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Dr. Arthur J. Barton, chairman of the executive committee of the Anti-Saloon League and of the Anti-Smith Democratic organization of the south, issued a statement here Thursday saying:

"The liquor forces wanted a national referendum on prohibition; they have had it and met their Waterloo. The triumph of election of Mr. Hoover and the crushing defeat of the Tammany wet nullification of the Tammany wet candidate, Governor Alfred E. Smith, are a most encouraging vindication of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law still remain and will remain.

Tammany Hit.
"It is hoped that the Tammany politicians of New York city and of the south are impressed that the United States is broader than the 'sidewalks of New York' and their 'east side, west side, all around the town.' It is hoped that the spirit of rebellion against the government in New York and New Jersey will disappear and that these states will come into the union. Prohibition will be enforced in the United States and one by one the civilized nations of the world will fall into line and abolish the legalized beverage liquor traffic.

"The religious issue cut no serious figure in the campaign. The fact that most of the southern states which constitute the most pronouncedly Protestant and evangelical nations of the country, gave Governor Smith their votes shows clearly that the religious issue injected by the Tammany forces four years ago in Madison Square Garden did not control in these states.

Pleasing Feature.
"The breaking of the 'solid south' is one of the most pleasing features of the election. Thus the south serves notice on the world that it will not continue to live in political bondage through a false regard for tradition and through a groundless fear and appeal to prejudice, racial or sectional, but that its soul shall be free, and that it will face and pass upon great moral issues on their merits.

"The south for the most part has elected the democratic congressional, senatorial, state and county nominees, even in the face of and in spite of the 'alleged and abusive attitude of many of them toward free American citizens who chose to exercise their inalienable civil rights and political freedom and independence. But the course pursued by these politicians will make it very difficult for the rank and file of honest, courageous, independent democrats to give these political leaders, who have pursued such a course, their undivided support, and it will not be strange if southern democracy shall feel that it will have to replace them with leaders of a truer and better type, leaders that it can trust on great moral issues."

Washington, November 8.—(AP)—Senator Curtis H. Curtis, vice president-elect, today celebrated his election by working in his office at the senate, in replying to a mass of accumulated correspondence and congratulatory messages.

After he clears his desk in his office, Senator Curtis plans to take a rest at the home of his sister here but he has as yet made no other definite plans.

The vice president-elect said that he expected to answer personally each of his congratulatory messages. He declared that he was recovering from the fatigue of his campaigning, although he still had his arm, injured when an automobile door was slammed on it, in a sling.

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Flu

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspirin, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as ten times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk 60c for a bottle of Aspirin and tell him to serve you two teaspoonful. With your watch in your hand, take the drink

NEW TRIAL GRANTED DRY AGENT WHOSE AUTO KILLED MAN

Richmond, Va., November 8.—(AP)—The United States circuit court of appeals sitting here held today that a prohibition agent in line of duty is excepted from the limitation of speed prescribed by city ordinances if he exercises a "degree of care commensurate with the dangers." The court reversed the decision of the lower court and ordered a new trial to be given Mark B. Lilly, federal prohibition agent.

Lilly, while driving his automobile in pursuit of a liquor car, ran down and killed a pedestrian in Huntington, W. Va., last year. The lower court held that the man should have followed the speed laws of the city and he was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter.

TEACHERS, DOCTORS BACK GRADY BONDS

Department of Mental Hygiene Sought; Committee
To Meet Tonight.

On the heels of adoption of resolutions by the staff of Grady hospital championing the $1,000,000 bond issue for improvement of the institution, the board of directors of the Atlanta Public School Teachers' association, headed by James P. Barron, called on city council and the board of education to provide a department of mental hygiene in the Atlanta school system and Alderman G. Everett Millican, of the tenth ward, called a meeting of the hospitals and charities committee of council for 6:30 o'clock tonight at the hospital.

These steps are the prelude to launching of a vigorous drive for the bond issue, which will be submitted to the people of Atlanta in the general election to be held December 5. Steps to place the needs before the Atlanta voting public and to secure the necessary number of ballots to authorize the issue will be taken at the meeting tonight. Mr. Millican, who is chairman of the committee, announced.

Early Treatment in View.
Resolutions of the teachers called attention to the fact that early treatment of psychopathic cases while the subjects are young and responsive would save many thousands of dollars to the city in caring for chronic cases. They urged a competent alienist to head the proposed new division. His work would be limited to students of the school system only, under the plan as evolved at the meeting of the directors.

In connection with the bond issue Steven Johnston, superintendent of the hospital, Thursday issued a statement in which he endorsed the plan because he was able to see in the course of his work that the city was far behind its needs in this regard.

"In Atlanta we have more than 30,000 citizens who depend on the Grady for hospital care, for they cannot afford other," Mr. Johnston said. "We now have only 500 beds. This number is far too low for our present needs which are increasing yearly. While we are at it we ought to take care not only of the present but also include the future, which the proposed plan will do. I certainly hope it is adopted."

Resolution of Staff.
Mr. Johnston made public a resolution passed Tuesday night at a meeting of the hospital staff. It follows: "Whereas, the mayor and general council of Atlanta have recently approved a bond issue of $1,000,000 for the enlargement and improvement of Grady hospital; and

"Whereas, we, the members of the medical staff of Grady hospital, white unit, are in a position to recognize the great need of such enlargement and improvement and the imperative necessity for immediate relief;

Therefore, be it resolved: "1.—That we, the medical staff of Grady hospital, white unit, heartily endorse the proposed bond issue.

"2.—That we, the medical staff of Grady hospital, white unit, commend the proposed bond issue to the voters of Atlanta.

"3.—That we, the medical staff of Grady hospital, white unit, urge the city and county authorities to build an institution that will not only care for the present needs of our sick poor, but anticipate the ever-increasing demands of a rapidly growing city.

Committee Is Organized.
"4.—That a special committee be appointed, from the medical staff, who shall act in an advisory capacity to the bond commission, and to the hospital and charities committee of council, in the preparation of plans and the equipment of the new additions to the hospital. The superintendent of the hospital shall be an ex-officio member of this committee.

"5.—That a copy of these resolutions be furnished to his honor, the mayor of Atlanta, a copy to the chairman of the bond commission, a copy to the chairman of the hospital and charities committee and a copy to the superintendent of the hospital."

Following is the committee named by the staff to assist the councilmanic committee to promote the bond issue: Dr. T. C. Davidson, Dr. Dan Sage, Dr. Marion Benson, Dr. Frank Wells, Dr. J. D. Manget, Dr. Louis Roush, Dr. Frank Eskridge, Dr. Willis Ragan, Dr. E. C. Thrash, Dr. Newdridge Owensby and Dr. L. G. Baggett.

PLANS INJUNCTION TO FIGHT HOOVER

Head of Anti-Prohi Unit
Claims President-Elect Is Disqualified To Serve.

Kansas City, Mo., November 8.—(United News.)—Twenty million Americans may think they elected Herbert Hoover as president of the United States, but that doesn't mean anything to Carl A. Neill, chairman of the board of the Anti-Prohibition Society of America.

"Alfred E. Smith or Joseph T. Robinson still have a chance for the presidency," Neill told the United News.

He explained it like this: "We expect to file an injunction against Hoover because of his alleged non-residence."

According to Neill, in the event of Hoover being disqualified; Smith would be the next choice because Charles E. Curtis, vice president-elect, could succeed only Hoover. He also pointed out if Governor Smith refused the office on such a basis, that Senator Robinson would be next in line.

And—stumbling over a few more "ifs"—in the event of a disqualification and a series of refusals, Norman Thomas, the socialist candidate, might find himself being addressed as "Mr. President."

The Anti-Prohibition Society of America is a relatively small organization in Kansas City waging its fight against the prohibition amendment in the middle west.

"Why do you use so many children in Oboy advertising?"

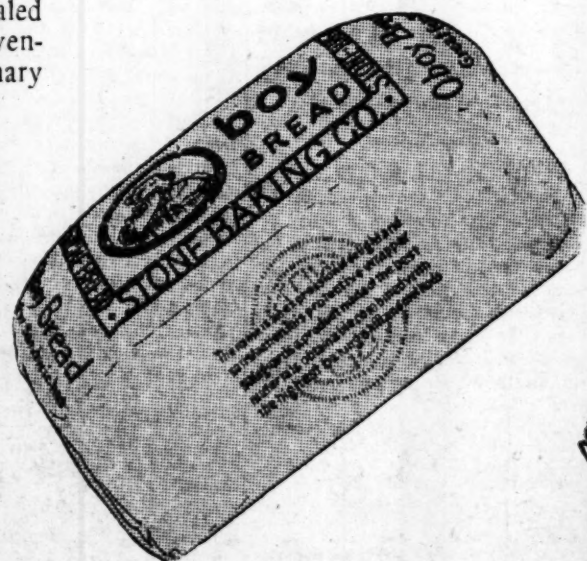

Somebody asked us that. Here's the reason. Oboy Bread is dedicated to children. We make it especially for them. Make it so delicious they want it again and again. They love the flaky, crumbly crust. The snow-white center.

And Oboy is wonderful for every kiddie. Extra rich in nourishing elements. To keep pace with active, growing bodies. Build bone and muscle and strength.

Although Oboy is comparatively new to Atlanta, it's already one of the biggest selling breads in town. That's because it's so good and healthful.

Begin getting Oboy from your grocer and see if you ever have to coax the children to eat bread again. It's different from other breads. Richer flavor. Firmer texture. Keeps fresher longer.

Every loaf comes in a sealed two-blue wrapper. Always oven-fresh. Costs no more than ordinary breads.

'BIG BILL'S' POLITICAL MACHINE IS CRUSHED

Chicago Voters Show Displeasure at Polls Tuesday.

Chicago, November 8.—(AP)—In retrospect, Cook county voters today regarded the remains of the machine of Mayor Thompson and State's Attorney

Robert E. Crowe, crushed by the steam roller of ballots Tuesday. The machine was badly shaken in vital vote in April at the primary. Not a candidate of the ring survived the election. Judge John A. Swanson, backed by the republican faction of Senator Charles S. Deneen opposing the Crowe-Thompson alliance, was chosen by a plurality of 141,363 over Judge J. Lindsay, democrat.

Listen to Me

(What Metcalf Says Is So)

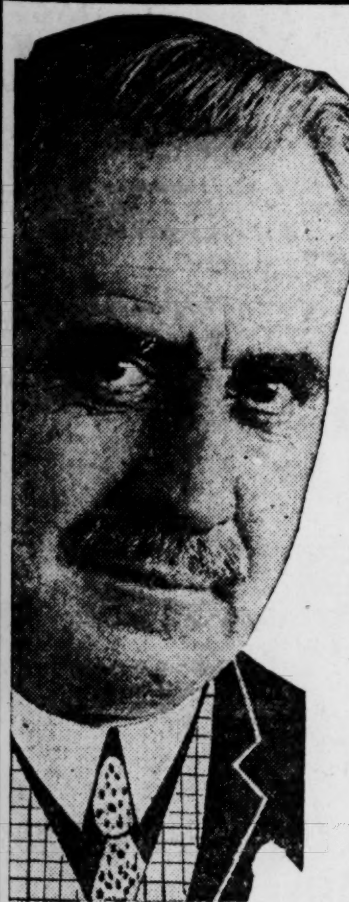

I've told you before how they glumme the laugh when I opened a clothing store four years ago, 3 doors north of the Postoffice on Forsyth Street. Well, I've put it over sellin' good nuse, at a price you are willin' to pay.

The day has passed for the merchant who pays one dollar and charges two. The money is drifted in the hands of the few. I'm not lookin' for the guy who don't care how much it costs. He ain't got no money now, and besides he's lookin' for credit.

I tell you (white folks) I'd rather make a dime in cash today than have the promise of a dollar to-morrow.

If you'll bring me the Jack and carry it home I'll put clothes on your back for less than any other Scotchman in America.

Listen, I'm sellin' (all-wool) suits for $13.50 (All-wool) silk lined Overcoats for $10.85

The new Trench Coat for six fifty and for seven fifty. I give you this new Trench Coat with heavy Scotch plaid lining. Mr. College man, I tell you it's a "knock-out," and many good merchants are chargin' ten and twelve dollars for 'em.

Oh, yes, we are sellin' a hat every minute, 'cause we're sellin'—

$3 Hats $1.50

And $5.00 Hats $2.99

Don't let some little 2 by 4 merchant tell you it can't be done, 'cause Metcalf's doin' it. Nine men in my hat department to serve you. Every kind, color, shape and size to fit you.

Don't be skeptical. Try a Metcalf hat and if it fails to please—why, you get a new hat, free. (What Metcalf Says Is So.)

MOVE TO DIVIDE U. S. IN UNITS FOR RHODES AWARDS

Philadelphia, November 8.—(AP)—Dr. Frank Aydelotte, president of Swarthmore college and American secretary of the Rhodes scholarship trust, announced today that the Rhodes trustees are promoting a bill in the British parliament which will change the method of selecting Rhodes scholars in the United States.

Under the will of Cecil Rhodes 32 scholarships are awarded each year in the United States. Under the new proposal the United States would be divided into eight districts of six states each, with a competition held in every state every year instead of in only two years out of every three as at present.

Burleson Deplores Smith's Withdrawal From Future Races

Austin, Tex., November 8.—(AP)—Albert S. Burleson, postmaster-general under President Wilson, in a statement today expressed regret that Alfred E. Smith had announced he would not run for public office gain and said otherwise he would favor the New York governor for the presidential nomination in 1932.

"Apparently the teachings of Jefferson, Jackson and Wilson have been forgotten by the southern people," Burleson said.

"The result of Tuesday's election is very disappointing to one who understands the fundamental principles of his party and knows why he is a democrat.

"Religious freedom, states' rights and honesty in public office are treated as inconsequential issues and ignored. Religious bigotry and hate, frequent hiding in a cowardly way behind the Volstead act, seem to have controlled."

"I regret that Smith announced his retirement. Otherwise I would have favored his nomination in 1932. His candor, his courage and his mastery of the art of the campaign command the admiration and approval of his party associates."

A. M. E. CONFERENCE LARGELY ATTENDED

Washington, Ga., November 8.—(Special).—The second day's session of the North Georgia conference of the A. M. E. church was held today in Jackson chapel, A. M. E. church, Rev. J. J. Shropshire, pastor. The devotional exercises were conducted by Dr. John Harmon and J. S. Downs.

Bishop W. A. Fountain, D. D., Ph. D., addressed the conference on "Ministerial Ethics" here today. Ministers and laymen take well to the business sessions and to the entire program as outlined by the bishop.

The conference today heard district and pastoral reports, which show an increase of membership and better support of the ministry.

The twilight missionary program held on Wednesday evening by the conference branch, missionary society, was an indication that the work was strong. The bishop's wife, F. L. Hadley and S. C. Simmons, of South Carolina, were the main speakers, and L. E. Forrester, conference missionary president, presided.

The educational anniversary Friday night promises to be of great importance. Speakers will include Dr. J. C. Lawrence, of Savannah; Dean G. A. Singleton, B. D.; President W. A. Fountain, A. M., Ph. D., Morris Brown university; Dr. W. H. Harris, M. D., treasurer, university system; Bishop W. A. Fountain, chancellor and chairman of the trustee board of the system, will preside. The big $100,000 drive for the year will be the approval of the A. M. E. church in Georgia.

The following ministers died this year: Rev. E. Lester, J. C. Carter, W. H. Carter, L. D. Hamilton and J. E. Roberts.

The missionary sermon was preached by Rev. L. J. Hamilton here tonight. The big conference song service, led by Dr. J. T. Wilkerson, featured the evening praises.

ALIANZA PARTY RETAINS CONTROL IN PORTO RICO

San Juan, Porto Rico, November 8.—(AP)—With apparently accurate and complete returns available from Tuesday's elections the Alianza party, headed by Antonio Barcelo and comprising a combination of unionists and numerous republicans, will retain control of the next legislature by a small margin. This party, however, suffered considerably in the polls compared with its previous strength.

The senate, it is estimated, will be made up as follows: Alianza ten, coalition nine. A gain of seven seats for the coalitionists. The house will be constituted—Alianza 21, coalition 18, a coalition gain of 15.

For the first time there will be a strong legislative minority.

Feliz Cordova Davilla has been re-elected as resident commissioner at Washington.

The men, who had drifted helpless for a week in a small boat without food and water, were picked up Tuesday in an exhausted condition by a fishing smack 20 miles off Fernandina, Fla. They were landed there, fed and clothed, and then brought here.

Towed by the tug Ontario, the barge was cast adrift late Wednesday in a rough sea when the tug's fuel supply ran low and she was compelled to head for port to avoid disabling her engines. The four survivors said it had not disappeared from their sight when the barge went down.

Take to Lifeboat.

Captain C. S. Bolt, of Moss Point, Miss., and C. Howard, of Wilmington, N. C., a member of the crew, were drowned, and the others took to the barge's only lifeboat, a small one equipped only with a sail.

For fear of capsizing the craft, they said they found it necessary to cast away the meager supplies of provisions they had put aboard, and they drifted aimlessly, hungry and cold, until the fishermen rescued them. During this time, they said, they signaled several passing craft, but none saw their plight.

Only two days ago a search for the barge had been abandoned after efforts of a number of coast guard vessels along the South Atlantic had failed to locate it. The Ontario, which reported it adrift immediately upon reaching port, had joined in the search.

Take to Lifeboat.

Captain C. S. Bolt, of Moss Point, Miss., and C. Howard, of Wilmington, N. C., a member of the crew, were drowned, and the others took to the barge's only lifeboat, a small one equipped only with a sail.

For fear of capsizing the craft, they said they found it necessary to cast away the meager supplies of provisions they had put aboard, and they drifted aimlessly, hungry and cold, until the fishermen rescued them. During this time, they said, they signaled several passing craft, but none saw their plight.

Eula Finds New Sweetheart As She Nears Electric Chair

WOMAN AND YOUTH EXCHANGE LETTERS

With her execution for the murder of Coleman Osborne, storekeeper, less than two weeks away, it has been learned that Eula Elrod Thompson has found a new lover, Dan C. (Barney) Harrison, train news-butter, who has joined in her fight to save her life. Eula and Harrison are shown above.

On the threshold of death in the electric chair, Eula Elrod Thompson, deprived convicted murderess, has found a new lover and he has joined her fight for life.

The woman, whose husband Clifford and a negro, Jim Moss, already have been executed for the crime for which she is condemned, found this new admirer as she was being returned to jail at Chatsworth from Milledgeville, after being respite by Governor L. G. Hardman. He is the news-butter on the train which bore Eula and her guards from Atlanta to Chatsworth and his name is Dan C. (Barney) Harrison, an employee of the Crescent News agency.

As Barney was passing up and down the aisle of Eula's coach that warm September day he studied the expression on the condemned woman's face. Each time he passed back and forth his eyes were centered on her. Finally she grew thirsty and the accompanying officers offered to buy her a drink.

"I shall never forget the look in her eyes as she accepted the bottle of soda from me," Harrison said Thursday. "It went straight to my heart and soul."

Since that day Harrison and Eula have exchanged letters, he writing from either Atlanta or Cincinnati, which is his northern terminus and she from her cell in the Chatsworth jail where she is being held until November 19, the new date for her execution unless Governor Hardman, who now is making an extended study of the case, should decide to intervene and commute the sentence.

"I am sure trying to do something to save her," Harrison said. "I have never loved anyone like I love her and though it may be founded on sympathy, sympathy and love are kin and I am trying my best to help her."

Asked what he was doing to assist the woman, Harrison said that as per case now was in the hands of the governor he "could do nothing at present but pray and hope" and that was what he was doing.

The Thompson woman was convicted in July, together with her husband and Moss of the slaying of Coleman Osborne, a storekeeper. Thompson and Moss went to death in the electric chair early in September after the prison commission and Governor Hardman had refused to stay the penalty. The execution of the woman had been set for September 22, but Governor Hardman stepped in with his respite order 24 hours before it was scheduled and granted her a 60-day reprieve to give him time to study the case.

The governor, thus far, has given no indication as to what he will decide in the woman's case.

MAYOR OF GOSHEN GOING TO FIGHT FOR FEMALE RIGHTS

New York, November 8.—The mayor of Goshen is going to seek action, as soon as congress is called in extra session, in order to avert what seems to him a grave menace to feminine rights. He writes the New York World of his perturbation over information given him that the girls in Albany, by order of the board of education, must wear full length stockings. In Goshen he made a ruling that if girls were compelled to pull up boys must do likewise and cease the collegiate custom of wearing no garters. But he has rescinded the order and declared an open season on collegiate socks till Easter.

Clear skies and plenty of sunshine are scheduled for Atlanta and vicinity today, according to the forecast of C. F. von Herrmann, head of the local United States weather bureau, and little change in temperature is expected.

Temperatures Thursday ranged from a minimum of 52 up to 60 about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Similar figures are scheduled for today, Mr. von Herrmann said, who predicts a range from slightly below 50 to a little above 60.

CALIFORNIA PLANS HOOVER CELEBRATION

Event To Be Held at San Jose; Date Has Not Been Set.

San Francisco, November 8.—(AP)—California republicans today began laying plans for a gigantic reception in honor of a favorite son—President-elect Herbert Hoover.

Although the republican central committee of Santa Clara county, in which Hoover's home is located, sponsored the plans, a share in the projected reception was assigned to the state organization. It is so held in San Jose. The date has not been decided upon.

The majority rolled up for the republican standard-bearer reached almost a half million votes in California when returns from 8,451 precincts out of the 9,086 in the state had been tabulated. The vote was: Hoover, 1,048,617; Smith, 581,930.

Great as it was, Hoovers overwhelming majority was less than that of the veteran senator Hiram Johnson, of California, seeking reelection in a race against Minor Moore, of Los Angeles, a democrat. Johnson's vote in 8,281 precincts—170 fewer precincts than those reporting presidential totals—was 1,078,536 against only 261,674 for Moore.

Senator Johnson was confined to his bed here today recuperating from a slight touch of influenza which prevented him from voting in Tuesday's election.

Pianiste To Play At Museum Today

Miss Waldman, artist pianiste, will play at the High Museum of Art this afternoon, during the reception for the Zubiarte exhibit of Spanish pictures. Miss Waldman, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Waldman, of Park drive, is said to be Atlanta's youngest concert pianiste.

Another victim of gangsters' guns was near death in a hospital today, his body riddled with 11 bullets. His recovery, physicians said, was doubtful.

He is William Danni, alleged leader of an underworld band. His brother was shot down in a gang feud less than three weeks ago. Danni was shot as he stood on a street corner last night when an automobile sped past him pumping out a fusillade of shots. He refused to reveal the identity of his assailants.

Danni and his brother were witnesses in a murder case several weeks ago. If he dies he will be the twenty-eighth victim of gang shootings which are now being investigated by a special grand jury.

COUNCIL TO CONSIDER NEW ZONE ORDINANCE

Vote Will Be Taken on Creating Post of Airport
Manager.

When city council holds its next regular session, November 10, it will consider new zoning ordinances which are now being perfected by City Attorney James L. Mayson at the request of Councilman John A. White, of the fourth ward.

Mr. White was the author of the constitutional amendment ratified by the voters of the state in the general election held Tuesday, and will sponsor the proposed provision of the zoning code to be offered to council. He will also ask council to pass resolutions asking Senators Walter F. George and William J. Harris, of Georgia, to request that the federal government furnish prints of pictures of outstanding battles of the civil war. When they are obtained they will be placed in the cyclorama at Grant park.

Another matter to come before council will be establishment of a post of field manager at Candler field, Atlanta's airport. If the proposal, which

BARBECUE IS GIVEN SAMUEL C. DOBBS ON 60TH BIRTHDAY

Samuel Candler Dobbs, famous Atlanta business man and capitalist, and internationally renowned advertising expert, was 60 years old on Thursday. The birthday was marked by an old-fashioned southern barbecue, at which Samuel Candler Dobbs, Jr., was host to his father and friends at the Druid Hills Golf club at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Friends of Mr. Dobbs came from as far as Texas and New York for the occasion.

Mr. Dobbs was born November 8, 1868. His father was a Confederate soldier who was left absolutely penniless at the end of the war.

Mr. Dobbs came to Atlanta in 1882 as bookkeeper for his relative, Asa G. Candler, then a struggling pharmacist trying to begin the sale of Coca-Cola. Mr. Dobbs was the first salesman for the Coca-Cola company and later became its sales manager, advertising manager, vice president and, finally, president. He resigned the presidency in 1920.

He has a magnificent home at Lakemont, Rabun county, and spends a large part of his time there.

comes from the aviation committee of council, is approved the new manager will assume office January 1 and funds will be provided in the January finance sheet.

ARMISTICE DAY PLANS INCLUDE GREAT PARADE

Gigantic Military Spectacle
To Feature Tenth Anniversary Sunday.

Atlanta will have a chance to view the city's most gigantic military spectacle since the world war Sunday, the tenth anniversary of the armistice.

A parade of veterans, sponsored by the American Legion and including a battalion of the 22nd U. S. infantry from Fort McPherson and survivors of the 82nd division, will march through downtown Atlanta to Keith's Georgia theater, where a big ceremony will be held with Congressman Lamar Jeffers, of the fourth Alabama district, a veteran of the 82nd and wearer of the distinguished service cross for gallantry in action, as the principal speaker.

Plans for the monster parade were announced Thursday by Colonel P. M. Stevens, grand marshal, who has selected the following as his personal aides:

Major Trammell Scott, Major J. C. G. Bloodworth, Major M. M. Burns, Captain Frank McInerney, Captain Roy LeCraw, Captain R. Frank Callaway, Captain Walter G. Mills, Captain Joseph R. Cooke and Captain James L. Harrison.

To Form on Whitehall.

The parade will be formed along lower Whitehall street with a detachment of mounted police proceeding in advance of the marshal. Colonel Stevens and his party will swing into the lead at the corner of Whitehall and Brotherton streets, from where they will be followed by the Atlanta police band and the official American Legion motor car bearing Congressman Jeffers and Commander Basil Stockbridge of Post No. 1.

Then will follow the first division composed of troops and commanded by Brigadier General A. G. Lott, of Fort McPherson. This division will include the 22nd infantry band and a battalion of picked troops commanded by Colonel Caffey. Other units will include the 122nd infantry, Georgia national guard, with Colonel C. H. Cox in command; the 114th hospital company of the Georgia national guard, commanded by Captain J. L. Howell; Troop C, 108th cavalry, commanded by Captain Theodore Goulsby.

Reserve Army Division.

The troop division will be followed by the reserve army division, commanded by Major Gilbert Marshall. The division will be assembled on Trinity avenue, west of Whitehall, and will fall in as the parade passes. This group will include recruiting detachments of the army, navy and marine corps and will be commanded by First Sergeant Charles H. McChesney and the naval reserve battalion in command of Lieutenant Harry F. Dobbs.

Special military units will compose the next division, which will be commanded by Major E. R. E. Schmidt, and will include the Tech high band, Old Guard battalion, commanded by Colonel W. M. Camp, and the Marist college cadets.

Veterans' Organizations.

The third division, commanded by Major S. N. Goodman, will be composed of veterans' organizations. These will include the D. A. V. drum corps, Atlanta Post No. 1 of the legion, commanded by Lieutenant James F. Morrison; the Disabled American Veterans, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the United Spanish War veterans.

The fourth division, which will be composed of patriotic organizations and will be commanded by an officer not yet selected. The division will include members of the legion auxiliary who will be carried over the line of march in motor cars.

Jeffers Outstanding Hero.

Congressman Jeffers, the chief speaker Sunday afternoon, is one of the south's most outstanding heroes of the war. He entered the first officers' training camp at Fort McPherson from his home at Anniston and when he had completed the course of instruction was commissioned a captain.

In the Meuse-Argonne offense Captain Jeffers was wounded twelve times, but refused to leave the battle field until he had fallen and was carried to the hospital. It was while in the hospital that he was promoted to major and recommended for the distinguished service cross, which he now wears. He was elected to congress from the fourth Alabama district in 1920 and served continuously since then.

LEAGUE AUXILIARY
PLANS 'POPPY DAY'
SALE ON SATURDAY

With the proceeds devoted to the American Legion's work on behalf of wounded veterans of the world war, aiding them toward rehabilitation and providing comforts and necessities, the annual "Poppy day" will be observed in Atlanta on Saturday.

On that day every person will be asked to buy a poppy from a committee of ladies, who will sell the artificial flower, reminders of the causes for which the world war was fought, on the streets. Mrs. Arthur Hazzard, president of the American Legion auxiliary, is in charge of the sale.

Th poppies to be sold have been made in government hospitals for the disabled soldiers by the men themselves and there is thus an added reason why every loyal American who would not forget the sacrifices made by thousands of American boys on the fields of France, ten years ago, should purchase a flower. The disabled men in their hospital wards have been busy making the flowers for months past.

Plans to aid in the sale, with the hope that it may establish a new record for Atlanta, will be made at the weekly luncheon of the Legion which is to be held at 12:30 o'clock today at the Henry Grady hotel.

The monthly meeting of Atlanta Post number one will be held at the chamber of commerce Friday night at 8, with the auxiliary meeting at the same time. Much important business is scheduled and all legionnaires are urged to be present.

Election Over, Business Interests Revive—Prepare
Now for That Good Position.

Enroll Monday, November 12, or during that week, for business courses. Enroll at the school notable for its thoroughness—The Southern Short-hand and Business University.

The school which has been accredited by the National Association of Accredited Commercial Schools.

The institution which eighty per cent of Atlanta's business men recommend to those inquiring for a good school.

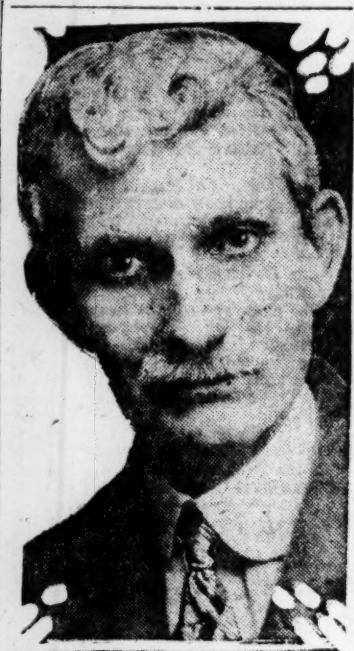

Election is over and big business will take on more impetus. Young people's opportunities are approaching and of all-important thing to do is to prepare now.

Youthtime is planning time and building time. It comes but once. Neglect it and it is lost forever. Neglect it and it carries into after years troubles that may be vexatious and disabling.

Youthtime is the time to sharpen mental tools for the great building job that lies ahead. The boy or girl who permits anything to crowd out the opportunity to get an education now, is indeed foolish.

This is a very earnest word and it is directed to those young people who have permitted nearly three months to pass unimproved. Plan now to start to school November 12, if possible. Spend the last two months of 1928 at the grindstone, task that you will find very pleasant.

Do not lose another week. Do not

PROVIDE SOUTHERN DELIVERIES.

The Savannah Cotton exchange is urging members-elect of the next Georgia legislature to consider and enact a bill similar to the bill introduced by Representative James D. Weaver, of Terrell county, in 1925, to prohibit the operation of bucket shops and unlawful dealings in future contracts, and to provide for organization of legitimate cotton exchanges and similar institutions.

This bill received the unequivocal endorsement of the Savannah Cotton exchange at the last two general assemblies of the Georgia legislature, and it again desires to go on record as repeating a request for the passage of this bill, or one similar, at the next session.

A question of sectionalism does not enter. The adoption of such a law vitally concerns the entire people of Georgia.

It behooves us to keep abreast of the times. Texas and South Carolina legislatures enacted a similar law, also the states of Oklahoma, Tennessee, Alabama and Louisiana have now in force satisfactory laws which allow legitimate trading in cotton futures.

Since the new law was enacted in Texas there have been established two points in that state—Galveston and Houston—where cotton may be delivered on contract against sales of cotton made for future delivery on the New Orleans Cotton exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade, and this feature has been the means of extending their business very materially. It is confidently expected that the New York Cotton exchange will in the near future designate some point in the South Atlantic states for delivery of cotton in their contracts, and the same is true of both New Orleans and Chicago.

As the present law in Georgia now stands, these markets could not afford to designate a Georgia point for such delivery.

Georgians cannot afford to stand idly by and allow Georgia cotton to be forced through a Virginia or South Carolina point for delivery on contracts. It was at its last session that the legislature of South Carolina amended its laws on the subject, in the hopes that it might defeat Georgia on this very issue.

Lack of action on the question will place Georgia in a most distressing position. The true value of southern delivery of cotton on contract in Georgia is under-estimated. Cotton prices are based as a rule on New York future delivery prices. It takes something like $4 a bale to put cotton into New York, but with a Georgia point designated as a delivery point, under a new law, there would be a saving to the producer of cotton, were this privilege in force.

By all means, Georgia should be prepared to embrace this additional outlet for the surplus cotton produced by the farmers of Georgia.

The proposed law is not in any way inimical to the best interests of the state. Its sections 2 and 3 outlaw the operation of bucket shops. Section 4 requires bona-fide transactions on legitimate exchanges, which must comply with the United States government regulations under the United States cotton futures act. Section 5 requires that transactions must be shown in writing, and through what firms contracts are executed. Section 6 makes provision that legitimate exchanges in Georgia shall allow full inspection of all books and papers by grand juries and prosecuting officers of the state. Section 7 provides for penalties.

The legitimate use of cotton futures is no longer an open question. The purchase and sale of futures against actual spot transactions is a necessity to the cotton farmer, the mill owner and the dealer in cotton. Again, every transaction executed in the futures market carries with it the statement that the actual tender or delivery of the commodity is contemplated. It is a form of insurance that is invaluable to the safe conduct of business. The successful merchant, farmer or mill owner always protects himself with this "hedge" or stabilized insurance.

The south should be the natural delivery point for cotton on contract, and the various markets are beginning to realize this. Georgia, by reason of her pioneer operations in cotton, is a logical place for a southern point of delivery.

ROOSEVELT'S POSITION.

The democratic party in America is alive and vigorous. If Franklin D. Roosevelt lives—and he will—he will be the nominee of the party in 1932, and he will sweep the country.

His great strength developed in New York, after only a short campaign, illustrates the fact that he is the democratic popular idol in the nation.

He was true to his friend, Alfred E. Smith. He threw the weight of his influence for him, and not for himself. He won over his friend not because of the weakness of Governor Smith, but because of the combined organized groups from within his party that fought him.

Franklin D. Roosevelt is an adopted Georgian. He spends a great deal of his time at his hotel at Warm Springs. Georgians love him for his great ability, his sterling character, and his own love of Georgia and the south.

He is the nation's democratic chief today and will be until he has served as president.

AN UNWISE POLICY.

It is a dangerous position of Atlanta's city council to try to change so many street names.

Perhaps it is all right in outlying sections where there is a duplication, but there is a flood of proposed changes including prominent downtown streets such as Decatur and Whitehall.

The change of downtown streets causes tremendous confusion. It haws up title records for years to come. It causes changes in our tax records, field books, improvement records, title company records, city directory, telephone books and delivery systems, and in addition, some small merchants have made street names their trade name, etc.

But most of all it offends the sentiments of thousands of native-born Atlantans and abolishes the historical value of these names. Decatur street is known all over the country, so named because it was the original road to Decatur which in turn was named after Stephen Decatur.

The tendency of council to name new improvements after politicians, and the school board to name new schools after themselves is bad enough, but to add to it by abolishing all of our old time-honored street names, is carrying it too far.

These things offend the feelings of most of our old citizens. If there is anything undesirable on these streets the thing is to remove it—a change of name will not make a wienner stand or chattering barker more attractive.

AGRICULTURAL EXPERTS.

George A. Dunagin has been asked to serve as chairman of a committee on agricultural exports for the second southeastern foreign trade conference which will be held in Atlanta November 20th and 21st.

The purpose of this conference is to bring together representatives of various commodities, industries and agencies engaged in or vitally interested in developing and extending our export markets.

The people of Georgia, generally, are actively interested and are co-operating with the committee in charge of arrangements for the conference. It is desired that all important southern farm products which offer export possibilities be represented, such as peaches, citrus fruits, apples, watermelons, peanuts, dairy products, meats, poultry and eggs, tobacco, etc. It is anticipated that attendance will be representative of the various exchanges, the state agricultural departments, state colleges of agriculture, railway development agents, warehouse people, steamship companies and operators, and others concerned.

Building operations this winter will largely be confined to cabinet making.

Kess Van Dongen.

Paris gossip of a coming surprise by the painter Kess Van Dongen at the forthcoming Salon. A new Venus perhaps? Or another of those portraits with the eyes enlarged beyond all measure? Nobody seems to know. Van Dongen himself is as silent as a sphinx. Wait and see is the only reply to be gotten out of him. Do that part of the "haute monde" that has nothing else to do but gossip, the suspense is unbearable, as a mountain of cannon fire, as a mountain of cannon fire, as a mountain of cannon fire.

But Kees is a man of his word. In his month, he works away furiously. No gay parties at his house now, no Lucullian repasts or any diversion, just work. "It makes me think," he said the other day, "of a youth when I had to paint or starve," he said the other day. And then came a long story of reminiscences. Of Rotterdam, his native city, and Antwerp, where he roamed along the quay on nights that seemed medieval, perfumed with memories of Pierrelou and the great Flemings. The fantastic light of a silver moon playing through a forest of ships' masts on the Scheldt, the vision never deserted him. And Antwerp, he said, with the humblest folk, stevedores, beachcombers, international vagabonds, with hearts of gold under unexpressed exterior.

He was in Paris in 1900 and success. Van Dongen, the society lion and "grand maître" of a world of very diverse and very different people, was in Paris in 1900 and success. ## Joyless Paris.

"American women do not like Paris." Under this curious heading in the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger appears an article to the effect that the majority of American women find Paris a dull, sombre and joyless city. The writer of the article bases his generalization upon a recent case of two American matrons who fell victim to a disease that might go under the name of glomolomania. After dancing with frenzy for several nights with a sleek young Argentinian sleek, one of those boys who can imitate the late Valentino to the extent of making his eyelids flutter so passionately, the ladies discovered suddenly that their sleek had vanished and taken their place. Then came the angry explosion about Paris being a joyless, dreary town. Had the Berlin reporter met the ladies on the previous evening he might have heard them say something about Paris being the promised land, a garden of Eden, a place to that effect. There are thousands of American women permanently fixed in Paris, who would not exchange it for any other place in the world. An overgrown majority of these women are not glomolomaniacs, but students, artists and writers, who find the atmosphere congenial. For apart from the borders in Montmartre chasing pleasure from sunset till dawn there is a Paris with millions where the atmosphere is pure and redolent of the things of the spirit. There are thousands of American women permanently fixed in Paris, who would not exchange it for any other place in the world.

OH, MR. WISEWELL.

A gang of kids in our town made it an annual practice to go the rounds of real estate and insurance offices in quest of calendars about this time of year. One day they encountered in such an office a man who had formerly been school principal. Mr. Wisewell recognized one of the boys as they were about to make their getaway and called out, "Oh, wait a moment, bub." Bub saw the gentleman reach into his pocket and draw out his pocketbook. Bub is different now, but was prompt to see his duty then. "Aw, Mr. Wisewell," he hastened to say, "I don't want any money." "I'm not going to give you any money," Mr. Wisewell assured him, "I just want you to take a little note in your book." Bub took the note and the scene has never forgotten it. A correspondent writes:

What is diabetes? What does insulin do? What is Bright's disease? do not ask symptoms.

For the best definition of diabetes I can give you are indebted to Dr. D. H. Buffin's "A Book for the Diabetic," published by E. Miles, South Lancaster, Mass. In this valuable little guidebook for patient and physician, Dr. Buffin explains that "A diabetic is one who starves for sugar while his blood is full of it."

It might be said that his blood sugar rises round and round on his sugar wagon instead of being delivered.

Insulin delivers the sugar.

Insulin is a kind of ferment (or as doctors say, a hormone) which is secreted by the pancreas (called Langerhans' islets) in the pancreas (abdominal sweetbread) and constantly poured into the blood stream. It is indispensable to the oxidation, combustion, utilization or metabolism of the blood sugar. When there is some deficiency in the production of insulin, the result is diabetes. The nature of the disease is therefore one of obtaining insulin from animal glands was developed and now it is possible to administer daily two or three doses of insulin hypodermically, at the time for meals, so that the diabetic patient may utilize the sugar, get the benefit of it, and gain in strength and health. Indeed, in some cases of marked underweight without any indication of diabetes, patients may be made to pick up many pounds in weight by means of this remedy.

Bright's disease is the common name for any kidney disease, more particularly for chronic or long enduring disease of the kidneys. This has no particular relation with diabetes, for diabetes is not a kidney condition at all, though some persons have both diabetes and Bright's disease. The term "Bright's disease" is a medical term for Bright's disease, and means kidney inflammation. However, in chronic nephritis there is no such state as the layman conceives as inflammation, and practically never pain or soreness, either in the back or joints or elsewhere. I mention this, not to complicate the discussion, but to extend a warning to the unsophisticated layman against an old quick trick whereby the natural or spontaneous passing of a lameness or pain about the back is ascribed to some worthless kidney nostrum or treatment.

In view of the confusion in the lay mind about these things it seems desirable that the law permits exploitation of popular credulity by the unscrupulous folk who make the customer believe that backache spells kidney trouble. (Copyright, 1928, for The Constitution.)

If You Would Teach Your Belief, First Show Us How Wise And Good It Has Made You

By Robert Quillen

The proof of the pudding is in the eating. As the twig is bent, so the tree inclines. Whatsoever a man sows he shall reap. Judge a tree of wisdom, wisdom of a man, by the fruit of the tree. These are the axioms of wisdom, mankind's kernels of wisdom, wisdom of a man, by the fruit of the tree.

Thus wisdom is hidden from the foolish, and those who are lost continue to wander aimlessly because they cannot see the signs that so clearly point the way.

What is the part of wisdom: to believe in a Savior or to believe dead men are mere meat? To drink or to let it alone? To love and marry and remain forever true to one mate, or to scorn law and custom and love lightly and often? To work and save and climb slowly, or risk short cuts to wealth? To treat women as the knights of fiction do, or to adopt the flippant cynicism of undergraduates? To believe in mankind's essential decency, or to think all successful men crooked?

In short, it is wise to accept the standards tested by time or to break away in the name of progress and be modern? How can you know?

The answer is ready and waiting. The dearly-bought wisdom of a thousand generations, boiled down to a single sentence, affords a solution for every problem: Judge a tree by its fruit.

It seems too absurdly simple, but that is a characteristic of wisdom. All wisdom is simple because it is like a straight line. It is the shortest distance between the question and the answer.

Whatever the moot question may be, you will find the partisans in each group possessed of some common characteristic. You never will find all the partisans branded by his cause; and if you espouse the cause, you may expect the brand. It is a law.

Does this belief make men sane, calm, gentle, happy? So it will make you. Does it make men bitter, restless, faithless, unmerciful. Thus it will shape you, also.

If a man would peddle balm, let him first heal his own bruises. If he would teach his faith, let him show proof that it has made him fair and tolerant and in "I will teach you." (Copyright, 1928, for The Constitution.)

JURY CONVICTS TORAL AND NUN

out guards, although some of them wore the pistols they carried in the latter part of the trial. Scenes in the courtroom and surrounding territory during the closing hours of the trial, assembled an army of guards, the foremen of guards were on duty outside the building to keep back the ever-swelling crowds eager to see the end of the trial, while the defendants were surrounded by guards with loaded rifles.

In the courtroom were a few of the deputies, supporters of General Oregon, who demanded justice and the punishment of the prisoners. Everybody permitted to enter the room was searched for weapons. There was a general feeling of uneasiness and fear that whichever way the jury decided, bloodshed might follow. Some of the jurors wore pistols, as there had been threats against them.

Assistant Prosecutor Enrique Medina opened his argument by appealing to the jury to convict both Toral and Mother Concepcion. He declared that the woman was the leader of a group of Catholic fanatics, who included Toral. He charged that Mother Concepcion participated in plots to kill President Calles and General Obregon at Celaya and also in bomb plots and that Toral was the blind instrument of this defendant in killing Obregon.

"These are not real Catholics," said the prosecutor. "They are parasites of Catholicism and the Catholic religion repudiates them."

The attorney for the defense, Senator Sodi, who had been jeered when entering the court, and for whose protection the guards had loaded their rifles, opened his address by declaring that he expected to be killed in the disturbance which occurred in the courtroom on Monday night, but was ready to die for justice.

The shouts were almost continuous from the crowds outside, while within the courtroom the jury deliberated. The shouts were almost continuous from the crowds outside, while within the courtroom the jury deliberated.

All! "You're all right, Al!" shouted above the din.

Outside, all vehicular traffic was held up in Broadway by a blaze of red fire, as the crowds filled the streets. Then with Mayor Thatcher and Judge John J. Brady, newly-arrived to the children's court, on each arm, the governor started on foot to the executive mansion. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Warner followed in a closed car. As the governor first saw the throng outside, his eyes filled with tears.

At the executive mansion Governor Smith, in response to cries of "speech" from the crowd, spoke briefly after Mayor Thatcher expressed the gratitude of the people of Albany for the distinguished manner in which Governor Smith has conducted his campaign.

The governor, waving a new brown derby, then said:

"It is with a deep sense of gratitude that I receive this reception. I have met with some splendid ovations in my travels over the country from east to west during the past months. I received a greeting in New York city such as might be expected in my native town, but right here in Albany, my adopted city, I have found the warmest and most cordial reception of all."

"I will never forget Albany and you may be sure that I will come back here as often as I get the opportunity."

The grand struck up "The Star Spangled Banner" and Governor Smith held high the brown derby in gesture of farewell.

GOVERNOR AL SMITH MAY HEAD BIG BANK

New Concern With Capital of $55,000,000 Being Organized.

New York, November 8.—(P)—Governor Alfred E. Smith does not expect to ever run for public office again, but is still undecided as to what his future business or professional activities will be.

The Herald Tribune says it is being rumored he is to be offered the chairmanship of the board of directors of a projected new $55,000,000 Wall street bank. The bank is being organized by Eugene L. Norton, vice chairman of the board of the Baltimore Trust company. The governor's term at Albany ends January 1 and he will be entitled to a pension of $6,000 a year.

The names of William F. Kenny, the governor's close friend; John J. Raskob, the Fisher brothers of De troit, and members of the DuPont family are being mentioned as possible associates on the board of directors of the new bank. The Herald Tribune says.

Although Raskob, last August, denied that he was interested in the bank, The Herald Tribune pointed out that his statement at that time left open the possibility of future connection. Announcement of definite plans for the formation of the bank, the paper says, it has learned, was withheld pending the outcome of the election but now may be expected within a few days.

The bank will have the largest capital funds with which any bank has ever been organized in this country. The governor, in an interview, said: "I certainly do not expect ever to run for public office again. I have given all I can stand of it. I have given a quarter of a century of probably the best years of my life to it. I will never lose my interest in public affairs, that is a sure thing, but as far as running for office again is concerned, that is out."

With the campaign over the work of cleaning up the affairs of the national committee is to be started immediately. As soon as things are in shape the national headquarters will be moved to Washington. Chairman John J. Raskob said that he will be coming in, as well as contributions and that although the exact financial status would not be known for several days the apparent deficit was close to $1,000,000.

He said the party's defeat was "nothing to be discouraged about" as the returns seemed to indicate that the party's minority had been decreased to only 10 per cent, a tremendous gain over the 35 per cent minority of the two previous campaigns.

He said that he would continue as chairman of the national committee for the full four-year term.

There was curiosity in Wall street today as to whether Raskob would return to General Motors. He gave up his places on the corporation's committees when he took charge of Smith's campaign.

Evidence produced at the trial disclosed the burning of the hotel followed the securing of workman's insurance on the property. The building was destroyed.

Famous Author Of Child's Tales To Visit Atlanta

David Cory, well-known and beloved writer of children's stories, will speak Friday night over WSB to the thousands of children who affectionately know him as "Uncle Dave, the Little Jack Rabbit Man."

Mr. Cory's tales of "Little Jack Rabbit's Adventures," of "Puss-in-Boots" and of "Little Journeys to Happyland" have made him famous. They were conceived long ago and told to his own little boys and daughters. He wrote the first of his "Jack Rabbit" stories. These and subsequent writings have been published by Grosset and Dunlap. Mr. Cory's stories have also appeared in the leading newspapers of the country in the form of popular bedtime tales.

All the children who know "Little Jack Rabbit" are urged to "listen in" to the Atlanta station Friday night and to meet "Uncle Dave" personally at Rich's Saturday. There he will autograph all of his books that the kiddies bring to him.

ROBERTS SEVERS CONNECTION WITH U. S. OIL ACTIONS

Washington, November 8.—(P)—Owen J. Roberts today terminated a service of four years as special counsel for the United States in the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills naval oil lease cases.

In submitting his resignation, effective immediately, to President Coolidge, Mr. Roberts gave as his reason the senate joint resolution which prevented him from taking up any cases of his own which had any connection with the government. Former Senator Alcee Pomeroy, of Ohio, his associate counsel, will continue in his present position.

In accepting Mr. Roberts' resignation, the president in a letter praised his work. Roberts, who was named to the post in 1924, prosecuted the civil cases on the leases to a successful conclusion before the supreme court which brought about the recovery by the government of the two reserves, and also took part in the criminal cases growing out of the leases.

DEMOCRATS LOSE 2 CONGRESS SEATS IN N. C. UPEHAVAL

Charlotte, N. C., November 8.—(P)—Eight of North Carolina's 10 democratic congressmen weathered the hurricane of votes that swung the Old North State into the republican column nationally. It was definitely ascertained as county canvassing boards took up the work of tabulating today.

But in the western section of the state, where the races have been close for years, two republicans were elected, Zebulon Weaver, of Waverlyville, losing a hair-line decision to G. M. Pritchard in the tenth and Major A. L. Bulwinkle, of Gastonia, being defeated by Charles A. Jones, of Lincolnton, republican national committeeman.

The race in the tenth was so close that it simmered down to one rural mountain county with nine precincts.

W. C. T. U. LEADER SEES DRY VICTORY IN HOOVER VOTE

New York, November 8.—(P)—Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance union, issued a statement today hailing the election of Herbert Hoover as a "great victory for constitutional prohibition."

"Many women," the statement read in part, "voted in this election who never voted before, for the women of America will take no chances on the return of the saloon, hence they registered and voted for Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis, the undoubted friends of prohibition. The result of the election is so overwhelming no man will ever again run for president on a wet ticket."

Mrs. Boole pledged Hoover the "heartiest cooperation" of the organization and its 600,000 members. She said an educational campaign would be carried on to promote "willing obedience" to the law.

DR. DUBOIS TO SPEAK New Yorker Will Discuss "Darker Races" on Nov. 22.

Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, of New York, will lecture November 22 on the "Present Outlook for the Darker Races," at Atlanta university, it was announced Thursday. The lecture is a part of the regular public course and admission is free.

During the past thirty years Dr. DuBois has been a popular lecturer at nearly all of the larger American universities and colleges and also has spoken in London, Paris, Brussels, Geneva, Lisbon, etc. He has traveled extensively in Germany, Russia, Turkey, Greece, Italy, France, Spain, England, Scotland, West Africa, and the West Indies, Canada and Mexico.

TITULESCU IS BALKED IN FORMING CABINET

Tries in Vain To Have Rumanian
Factions Bury the Hatchet.

Bucharest, Rumania, November 8.—(P)—Nicholas Titulescu, pressed by the regency to terminate Rumania's political crisis and restore credit abroad at any cost, made valiant efforts today to form a national coalition cabinet, but late tonight had not succeeded.

He spent almost the entire day in earnest conversation with M. Bratianu, whose resignation as premier was requested by the regency a few days ago, and Julius Maniu, peasant party leader, urging them with all of his diplomatic persuasiveness to "bury the hatchet" and put their country's welfare and honor above mere party differences.

Still smarting under his summary dismissal from the cabinet by the regency, Bratianu told M. Titulescu that he declined to enter any cabinet formed either by Titulescu, himself or Maniu.

Maniu, on the other hand, receded from his former inflexible position and showed a more conciliatory spirit. He assured M. Titulescu that the peasants party was prepared to join in a national concentration ministry which might include even the liberals, provided there was an immediate dissolution of parliament to be followed by unhampered free elections.

TWO MORE KILLED IN KENTUCKY OVER ELECTION DISPUTES

Louisville, Ky., November 8.—(P)—The list of Kentucky deaths as the result of election day was swelled by two names today, making a total of six dead and one wounded attributed to political altercations and the election celebration.

The names today were those of Otis Wilson, who died in a Pikeville hospital as a result of wounds inflicted at Duffield and Henry Thomas, negro, who died of wounds inflicted at Betsy Layne.

Ed Roman is in the Pikeville jail in connection with the shooting of Wilson.

Constable Newton Fannin, Ashland; Ferd Lyons, Robinson, Station; and John Shoemaker, Cub Run, were the others killed as a result of political disputes. Mrs. Elizabeth Yates, Louisville, was run over by a car bearing an election banner. Coy McClard, Scottsville, was wounded in a political quarrel.

POLICE CAPTAIN OUSTED BY BOARD AT PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, November 8.—(P)—Charles Levy, police captain, among those named as "unfit to hold any public office" by the special grand jury investigating bootlegging and police corruption, today was ordered discharged by the civil service commission for conduct unbecoming an officer. A detective was also dismissed.

Levy was the fourteenth police official to be dismissed from the force within two days. Three inspectors and 10 captains were discharged yesterday, most of them being ordered to explain the source of their personal wealth to the grand jury. Two of the captains are in jail, convicted of bribery and extortion.

The principal point stressed against Levy by Bryan A. Hermes, assistant district attorney, was the captain's refusal to explain $5,000 of his bank deposits.

BANDIT, 17, IS FOUND GUILTY IN SLAYING OF BANK PRESIDENT

Mobile, Ala., November 8.—(P)—Robert Collins, 17-year-old bandit, accused of murder in the death of Claude B. Hurt, president of the state bank of Citronelle, Ala., was found guilty today and immediately sentenced to life in the penitentiary. His counsel announced there would be no appeal from the decision. Collins was indicted jointly with Jack Jarvis, now under both sentences.

Collins, Jarvis and Willie Hanson on July 14, last attempted to rob the Citronelle bank. Hurt grappled with Collins and was shot and fatally wounded by Jarvis. Jarvis at the door of the bank shot Hanson so badly that he died several hours later after capture by a posse. Hanson made a dying statement that Jarvis shot him for bungling the bank robbery.

MEXICAN GOVERNMENT BOYCOTTS NEWSPAPER

Alleges Mishandling of Story About Toral's Trial.

Mexico City, November 8.—(AP)—The newspaper Excelsior has been boycotted by the Mexican government, with the explanation that it made a hero and a martyr out of Jose de Leon Toral, assassin of General Alvaro Obregon in its handling of the story of Toral's trial.

An official statement, which was published by all newspapers except Excelsior, said that the newspaper's stories on the trial were an encouragement to insurgents in seditious activities against the government and to others to assassinate President Calles and other government heads. The statement was issued by Emilio Portes Gil as chief of the cabinet after he had conferred with the president.

All workmen and persons, all members of the political parties and officials and employees of the federal and state governments were called upon not to purchase or subscribe to Excelsior and to refuse to patronize anybody advertising in the newspaper. The statement added that no government department or employee would give any news, information or advertising to Excelsior.

DR. HENRY BRADLEY QUITS PASTORATE AT PORTLAND, ME.

Dr. Henry Stiles Bradley, at one time one of the leading ministers of Atlanta, has resigned his pastorate of the State Street Congregational church, of Portland, Maine. It was learned in news dispatches reaching this city Thursday.

Dr. Bradley's resignation came as a surprise to his Portland congregation, which he has served for the past eight years. In making the announcement, Dr. Bradley stated that ill-health had made it necessary for him to abandon all work and seek a more salubrious climate. He stated that he plans to motor leisurely to Florida, leaving Portland on November 19, and it is probable that he will spend some time in Atlanta en route.

Dr. Bradley was pastor of Trinity Methodist church in Atlanta in the early 1900's, leaving here to accept the pastorate of St. John's Methodist church, St. Louis. From there he went to Worcester, Mass., as pastor of the Piedmont Congregational church. He left Worcester eight years ago to accept the call to Portland.

Dr. Bradley was for years vice president of Emory college when it was located at Oxford.

BERGER, SOCIALIST MEMBER CONGRESS, LOSES REELECTION

Milwaukee, November 8.—(AP)—An all-republican representation in congress for Wisconsin was assured today when the complete unofficial returns from the fifth congressional district showed Representative Victor L. Berger, the socialist, had been defeated for reelection by William H. Stafford.

Merlin Hull, Black River Falls newspaperman, was chosen representative of the seventh district as the successor to Joseph D. Beck by an overwhelming vote.

The election of Mr. Hull and Mr. Stafford gives Wisconsin two conservative republicans in congress, and they are the first to dent the solid anti-administration front shown by the Wisconsin delegation in many years. They, with John C. Schafer, Milwaukee, and James A. Frear, of the tenth district, were the only ones who supported Herbert Hoover in the campaign.

ATLANTA BOY POPULAR AT NEW JERSEY SCHOOL

Rufus M. Darby, an Atlanta boy who is now attending the Peddie school in Hightstown, N. J., is earning considerable prominence and popularity in the school. In the morning assembly recently Darby gave most cleverly a story describing a 'possum hunt'. He narrated the story with a most humorous use of affected, exaggerated southern dialect.

Young Darby has attracted additional attention to himself in the scholastic aptitude test (psychological test) recently held at Peddie. The young man has earned one of the highest grades in the school. Darby is the son of R. C. Darby, of 2003 Habersham road.

ONLY TEXAS G. O. P. CONGRESSMAN MAY LOSE REELECTION

San Antonio, Texas, November 8.—(AP)—Harry M. Wurzbach, only republican congressman from Texas, was trailing 535 votes behind in his contest for reelection with unofficial returns tabulated today from all but eight precincts. Judge Augustus McCloskey, of San Antonio, the democratic nominee, had a total of 30,086 votes, Wurzbach 29,491. The other Texas elected democrats.

THE YOUNG PRETENDERS

By Alice Grant Rosman

SYNOPSIS

While lying helpless in bed after a motor accident, Hugo Donaldson broods over the fact that in father, with whom he had quarreled just before the smash, he has never come into his room to visit him. He decides that he must be dead and that his mother and the servants are keeping it from him.

INSTALLMENT V. A SHOCK

Lady Eleanor Wise was a great aunt and a great gossip on Hugo's mother's side. Somebody had once declared that she knew everybody, went everywhere, and said everything, and that directly you had a skeleton in your family cupboard she labeled you indelibly. You became "poor So-and-So" to her forever after.

Hugo had always considered her an amusing old bird, and now, as she came sailing into his room, it struck him that bird was the exact expression. She was like a parrot, and her hat, most shaped and close to her head at the sides and going up from the front in a sort of crest, increased the likeness.

She looked Hugo and his setting over, nodding her head at Lady Donaldson.

"You may be thankful you have him safe under your eyes, Amy," she said significantly. "Not like poor Mary Mostyn."

Hugo's mother looked suddenly distressed.

"It's too dreadful, isn't it?" she said. "Have you seen Mary?"

"Yes, indeed. 'Dear Lady Eleanor,' she said to me, with the tears streaming down her cheeks. 'I shall never be able to look the world in the face again.'"

This seemed so utterly unlike anything Mrs. Mostyn could have said in any circumstances that Hugo wanted to laugh, but he restrained the impulse because the conversation was beyond him at the moment and he wished to know what it was all about.

"I said to Mary, 'Charin is to blame for it, my dear. You mark my words. I'm surprised that a clever woman like you shouldn't have seen that danger long ago.' And poor Mary just bowed her head, too moved to speak. Look at the cases on every side of us," proceeded Aunt Eleanor. "There was that young Tony Rockington, Charin again, and what happens? He marries a chorus girl and goes completely to the dogs."

"Oh, but did he?" protested Hugo's mother. "You know, the Rockingtons have been from them quite regularly, and he's his wife in the end."

"Well, there you are," said Lady Eleanor significantly. "Then there was the Andrew Matlocks' second girl, she ran off with a good-looking fellow, whom, some scoundrel, only to find he had at least two other wives. Charin again, I could quote you a dozen cases."

"But who is the charming villain who has led Mrs. Mostyn astray?" inquired Hugo at this point.

"Hugo, darling,"

"Well, isn't that what Aunt Eleanor said?"

"You'd put words into my mouth, would you, young man?" said Aunt Eleanor magisterially. "Then let me tell you that you should thank Providence you are in a comfortable bed with a devoted mother to look after you instead of beside your friend, Paul Mostyn. I know you young people of the present day . . . all alike, every one of you."

"O Aunt Eleanor, not Hugo."

"Paul?" said Hugo, quickly. "What is the matter with Paul? He isn't . . . he isn't dead, is he?"

"Dead? Better if he were," said Lady Eleanor. "As poor Mary said, 'I'd rather see him lying dead at my feet.' Paul is in one of his majesty's prisons, Hugo."

"Paul in prison? Why . . . where . . . what has he done?" cried Hugo, so white that his mother hurried to his side.

"Hugo, darling, I thought you knew. It was in all the papers, and I haven't talked about it to you because I knew you were so fond of Paul."

"Ah!" said Aunt Eleanor to that. "Everybody is fond of Paul," said Hugo, in quick defense. "Reading the papers makes me so tired, mother, and I didn't know a thing. I've been wondering why I hadn't heard of Paul, and you know at Christmas, when I went round to see him, they said he was away."

"Yes, I know, dear, but now it turns out he had got himself entangled with this wretched girl and they were hoping to persuade him to give her up."

"What wretched girl?" asked Hugo, utterly bewildered.

"The one he married. Some girl no one knows anything about, out of a shop or office or some such place. It was a shock to me, for I always thought he was going to marry Bunny Molyneux."

"And so did everybody else, including Bunny Molyneux," declared Lady Eleanor. "Poor Mary says Bunny cried like a child, and said, 'O Mrs. Mostyn, if he wanted money so badly, why didn't he forge my name instead of stealing from strangers in a night club . . . Paul in jail?'

"I don't believe a word of it," shouted Hugo, angrily.

In his excitement he tried to move, and a dreadful wave of agony shut out the world. Somewhere at an immense distance he could hear his mother's voice calling, "Tright . . . Tright!"

Then he fainted.

Hugo opened his eyes drowsily and stared at a picture of a garden full of summer flowers. It annoyed him, and he wondered, vaguely, why. Pretty, that was it.

"Damn it, I wish I could chuck something at the beastly thing," thought Hugo.

Something heavy was on the bed under the eiderdown. He moved an exploring hand and felt the thick edges of the "Who's Who," but the movement brought Tright, who had been sitting in one of the chairs out of the patient's view, and Hugo still his hand instinctively.

"Had a little dose?" said Tright. "That's right."

What was the fellow hanging about for? Hugo looking up into the round, flat face, found an expression there that surprised him. It was almost solicitous and one-man-to-anotherish.

"The ladies, they will talk, and it's wearing. I thought I'd sit here a bit and keep them off," said Tright, and went back to his chair.

Tright actually explaining himself and regarding Hugo for a moment as a person and not a case! Tright appointing himself an ally instead of an enemy . . . a warder!

A warder? Hugo's mind, struggling back from the effect of the drug which Tright could only be persuaded to give him now when the need was desperate and the pain past bearing, caught at the word, and comprehension and full remembrance came at last.

Paul in prison? Paul stealing from strangers in a night club and Bunny Molyneux crying like a child!

No, it was all wrong. It was perfectly idiotic. Hugo wouldn't believe it.

He had always liked Paul, but then everbody had liked Paul, and Paul had liked everybody, grinning all over his face and full of beams. There was that year he had captured the school eleven at Lord's and beaten Harrow. Talk of threats! Hugo had been certain old Paul would play for England some day, but later Paul had given up cricket . . . a dashed pity. Hugo thought it, but Mr. Mostyn considered games a waste of time. He was like that, and Paul was always so ready to agree that other people were probably right.

Paul in jail . . . Paul with his hair that would never lie down and look sleek, cropped close; Paul, always a bit fastidious about his clothes, wearing sloppy bags and a heavily coat with broad arrows! It was ghastly.

And Bunny Molyneux crying like a child? No, no, Hugo wasn't going to believe a lie like that. It put the lid on the whole thing. What was that silly rhyme they used to chant about her? . . . "She's a bunny, but so rabid!"

Hugo couldn't remember the rest of it at the moment, but he remembered the occasion perfectly . . . one summer at the seaside, ages and ages ago, when they were and their parents busy all over the place; and governesses and people had taken them down, Paul and Alison Mostyn, and Roland and Muriel Wise, and the three Anstruthers and Hugo. And then little Bunny Molyneux had somehow joined on; Bunny, a thin, spindle-legged, sallow child, not pretty like the other girls, but fierce as a boy and fighting with her fists. Bunny cry? The very idea made Hugo laugh.

RADIO-ING THE AIR WAVES

BY THE DIAL TWISTER.

With the approach of Armistice day, the Spearman vocal and instrumental artists will revive many of the songs so popular a decade ago during the Wrigley Review to be broadcast through WSB and the N. B. C. system at 8 o'clock tonight.

Plunging into marching rhythm, the program opens with Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever," played by the orchestra. The vocal ensemble follows with the wistful melody of "There's a Long, Long Trail," and an enterprising Spearman will play George M. Cohan's war-time song hit, "Over There," as a banjo solo.

A contralto sings of "Roses of Picardy," and a male quartet presents Carson Robinson's "Memories of France," reminiscent of the American army abroad.

The program concludes fittingly with "Keep the Home Fires Burning," a Canadian marching song which will be sung by the whole assemblage.

8 o'clock—a musical program for this hour is a feast for the stars and stripes.

There's a Long, Long Trail, Ensemble and Orchestra.

Over There, Banjo Solo.

Where the Shy Little Violets Grow, Quartet.

Don't Be Like That, Duo.

Over There, Banjo Solo.

Was It Love?, Solo.

Gallows, C. C. Solo.

Children's Corner, Debussy.

Sing Hallelujah, Orchestra.

Keep the Home Fires Burning, Trio.

Where the Shy Little Violets Grow, Quartet.

Merry Farmer, Schumann.

Roses of Picardy, Wood.

Twinkling Star, Lincoln.

Gonna Have a Wonderful Time Tonight, Trio.

Memories of France, Trio.

Procession of the Kings, Trio.

Babes in the Wood, Trio.

Very Good Eddie, Trio.

Our Ambition, Trio.

March from Aida, Trio.

Keep the Home Fires Burning, Trio.

A musical interpretation of elves and fairies for the younger children, and orchestral exposition of the string instruments for older students will be included in the RCA educational hour, directed by Walter Damrosch, which will be broadcast through WSB and the N. B. C. system from 10 o'clock until 11 o'clock tonight.

The first half of the hour, in which the music and the explanation of Damrosch are designed to be heard by children of the third and fourth grades, is entitled "The Magic Door." In it Damrosch will point out to the children how the best music opens up a beautiful world to the imagination.

It opens with the overture to Carl Maria von Weber's "Oberon." This was written more than a hundred years ago and tells of how Oberon, the elf king, quarreled with his fairy queen, Romancing the world to find two lovers who were constant under all circumstances, he finds a young knight who is in love with the daughter of the caliph of Bagdad. Lindworm, "Dance of the Moors," is a fantastic fragment. Before being played by the large symphony orchestra, Damrosch will point out how the sound of the moorland flight is reproduced by musical instruments.

In Mendelssohn's "Spinning Song" the young listeners will be able to hear the hum of the spinning wheel. In Paganini's "Entrance of the Little Fauns," taken from the ballet, "Casse-Capote," the music, as explained by Damrosch, will tell its own story.

The second half of the program, which begins at 11:30 o'clock, eastern standard time, will be heard by children in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades. In this program Damrosch opens his study of the various choirs of the symphony orchestra and takes up the study of the string instruments. It opens with the "Entrance of the Little Fauns" from Richard Wagner's opera, "Die Meistersinger von Nürnberg."

In the opera it is sung by the young knight who wins the singing contest and the hand of the daughter of the old master-singer. It transcribes readily for the string instruments.

This will be followed by "Molly on the Shore," a rollicking tune by Percy Aldridge Grainger, the Australian pianist-composer. It is filled with humor and much resembles an Irish reel.

The program concludes with the andante movement from Schumann's "Symphony No. 4" in D minor. It begins with a simple, plaintive melody played by the cellos and oboes, accompanied by the other strings pizzicato (plucked). In it there is a part for solo violin playing a variation on the principal theme. The movement closes with the melody that opened it.

The complete program for this broadcast follows:

First Half, "The Magic Door": Overture to "Oberon"; Weber Dance of the Moors; Lindworm; Spinning Song; Mendelssohn Entrance of the Little Fauns; Paganini "Casse-Capote"; Paganini Prize Song from "Die Meistersinger"; Wagner Molly on the Shore; Grainger Andante from "Symphony No. 4"; Schumann

NEW WAVE LENGTHS IN EFFECT SUNDAY

Practically Every Station on Air Will Be Found in New Place.

BY MARTIN CODEL.

(Copyright, 1928, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Washington, November 8.—Any lurking doubt whether the radio reallocation will go into effect as scheduled at 3 a. m. Sunday may now be positively dispelled. Nearly every broadcasting station in the United States will be heard Sunday and thereafter on new wavelengths or with new power and time assignments. The reallocation means changed and obtained hearings before the Federal Communications Commission.

That the commission's order. There are still some dissatisfied communities, like Brooklyn, N. Y., and some parts of Iowa, where certain stations are to have fewer operating hours than they formerly enjoyed. There are more dissatisfied station operators, but while many have sought and obtained hearings before the commission on their complaints, none has yet seen fit to carry his case to the courts.

Four of the five members of the commission are unanimously of the opinion that the reallocation is in the public interest. Its general features are the clearance of 40 of the 90 available channels for high power broadcasting, the designation of 31 channels for interference-free operation of stations of intermediate powers widely separated geographically and the crowding of the low powered local stations on a few wavelengths.

All of the commissioners favorable to the allocation project have stated, both formally and informally, that they are confident the reallocation will provide improved radio reception, particularly in rural America. They can, of course, furnish no relief from such elements as the commission will have to account to congress for its policy now seems a certainty. Whether congress will insist on details of the allocation, "Cavallaria Rusticana" was written by Mascagni in the brief period of eight days.

The story of "Cavallaria Rusticana" is quite familiar to most everyone. It concerns Turiddu, a young Sicilian peasant, who returns from the wars to find Lola, his old sweetheart, married to Alfio. Turiddu turns his attention to Santuzza and makes love to her, but when Alfio is called away he renews relations with his old sweetheart, Lola. Santuzza in despair tells Alfio of his wife's nestings with Turiddu, and the two men have a duel in which Turiddu is slain.

ATLANTA U. D. C. HIT FOR MEMORIAL SUIT

Fulton Chapter, in Resolution, Calls for Cessation of Efforts To 'Hinder' Work.

Resolutions have been adopted by the Fulton chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, calling for a "cessation of the unwarranted efforts" of certain members of the Atlanta chapter of the same organization "to hinder the Stone Mountain Confederate Monumental association in its work" in reference to recent action of the Atlanta chapter in instructing the trustees named under the reversionary deed to bring suit for the recovery of the Stone Mountain property.

The Atlanta chapter recently took its action after Sam H. Venable and associates, owners of Stone Mountain, had given to a committee of trustees of the chapter a reversionary deed to the Stone Mountain property. The deed was given on the assertion that the Stone Mountain Confederate Monumental association had not completed the central group of the memorial in the time limit fixed in the original deed. A few weeks ago the Atlanta chapter passed resolutions asking its committee of trustees composed of 50 prominent Georgia women, to bring suit for the recovery of the property under provisions of the Venable reversionary deed.

In the resolution introduced Tuesday by Mrs. J. R. Wakefield and passed unanimously by the Fulton chapter, it was stated that the Georgia division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy unanimously indorsed the Stone Mountain memorial and pledged its support to G. F. Willis, president of the Stone Mountain Confederate Monumental association. It was stated further that representatives and accredited delegates of the Atlanta chapter were in the hall when the state division took this action. It was declared also that "a small group of women in the Atlanta chapter at a special called meeting passed the resolution to institute suit to secure possession of the Stone Mountain memorial."

The Fulton chapter expressed the opinion in the resolution that "no one chapter should complete the memorial." It was stated further that such continued agitation delays completion of this great project.

The resolution then calls "for a cessation of these unwarranted efforts to hinder the Stone Mountain Confederate Monumental association and to obstruct the work on the memorial and we urge all daughters of the Confederacy to join with us in every way possible in hastening the completion of the great memorial at Stone Mountain."

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

REDDY TRIES A TRICK.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

What honest effort can't attain A clever trick will often gain.

—Reddy Fox.

Two people were very much puzzled. Indeed they were! It is a question which was the most puzzled. Reddy Fox was puzzled by the problem of catching Rusty the Fox Squirrel. Rusty was in an old hole of Johnny Chuck's, but there was a back door as well as a front door to that hole. If Rusty should dig in by the front way Rusty could run out the back door and escape. If he should try to get in by the back way Rusty could escape through the front door.

On his part Rusty was puzzled. He couldn't tell at which door Reddy Fox was watching. If he should poke his head out at either door he might poke it right into the jaws of Reddy Fox. How was he to get out of that house and still escape Reddy Fox? He couldn't stay there indefinitely. In fact, he didn't like the idea of staying there at night. Rusty is in the habit of sleeping at night. He is afraid to be abroad in the dark, for he cannot see well enough. If he should stay there until dark Reddy Fox might creep in and surprise him without his knowing anything about it until he was caught.

Reddy sat down to think things over. He knows Squirrels and their ways. He knew that Rusty would not be content to stay very long in a hole in the ground. A hole in a tree would be a very different matter, or even a hole in a log. But Rusty isn't naturally a ground-loving animal, and Reddy knew this.

He doesn't care for the hole just as soon as he thinks he has a chance," thought Reddy. "The trouble is, he won't know where he has his chance. He doesn't care for his head out, for he doesn't know at which hole I will be waiting. I must try some trick to get him out of the hole."

Reddy pondered the thing for a while. He decided to try a little way out and remain hidden. I shall have to remain patient a long time, but a Fox Squirrel is worth a long wait."

Reddy poked his head down the hole. "You're a lucky Squirrel!" he barked. "If it were not that I have something better to do I would be here. You may just consider yourself lucky, Rusty. Just consider yourself lucky. Goodbye until next time."

Reddy withdrew his head, ran off a short distance, waited a moment or two and then barked softly, so as to make his voice sound far away. After that he stole swiftly but softly over among the bushes along the old fence within a couple of good jumps of both the back door and the front door of the Woodchuck hole. Then he stretched himself out very flat and prepared to wait.

Now, Rusty the Fox Squirrel hadn't believed a word of what Reddy Fox had said. "I know that Reddy sat down to think things over.

"I don't believe I have an engagement anywhere else. I don't believe he has something else to do. He's probably watching right close by in the hope that I'll think he has gone and will come out."

But when a few minutes later Rusty heard the faint bark of Reddy Fox, as if at a great distance, he wasn't so sure that Reddy hadn't done just what he said he was going to do. The longer he waited the more uncertain he became. It seemed to him that he just couldn't stay down in that hole much longer.

He doesn't care for his head out, for he doesn't know at which hole I will be waiting. I must try some trick to get him out of the hole."

Atlantans Visit Woody's Gap, Scenic Beauty

Dahlonega, Ga., November 8.—Unofficial opening of the new state highway on route No. 9 from Dahlonega to the foot of Neel Gap, reducing the distance by more than half, has introduced hundreds of Atlanta motorists to the beauties of Woody's Gap, on Black Mountain, in the Cherokee National forest, and for the past week the government road to the summit has been filled with cars.

The beauty of the rainbow-tinted autumn foliage which is buried in distance by this fall than for many years, has brought thousands of Atlanta folk to the foot of the Blue Ridge in and about Dahlonega, and if the approaching week-end is bright and fair it is expected that hundreds of cars will be seen on the roads.

The shortest and fastest route from Atlanta is by Roswell and Cumming, over an excellent highway. From Dahlonega the new highway which replaces the noted "cut-off" leads past the famous old Porter Springs and picks up the Appalachian scenic highway at the foot of Neel Gap.

From the historic "stone pile" on the new highway, where tradition says an Indian prince is buried, the government forestry department road leads up to Woody's Gap, overlooking the coves of the Toccoa basin, a vista more broad than that from Neel Gap and considered by many more beautiful. The trip to both views may easily be made in a few hours, and from Atlanta to Woody's Gap, by Dahlonega, the distance is only about 90 miles, an easy three-hour run.

Residents of this section believe that Route 9, from Neel Gap through Dahlonega, Cumming, Alpharetta and Roswell, will be an optional "leg" of the Appalachian Scenic highway, in the same way that such optional routes are included in the Dixie highway and other routes. It is considerably shorter, passes through no congested centers, carries little commercial traffic, and carries the tourist into Atlanta through the Roswell road into Peachtree road and the "north side."

The new state highway which opens this route from Atlanta into the Carolinas is not yet ready for all-weather traffic, but the grading has been completed and thousands of cars are traversing it rapidly in fair weather. It is expected to be surfaced and formally opened by next spring.

COAL MINE BLAST TAKES MANY LIVES

HARWELL-GLASS CASE REACHES JURY TODAY

The case against Walter E. Harwell, city marshal, who is charged with assault to murder Steve C. Glass, former chief deputy marshal, will go to the jury at 9 o'clock this morning, when Judge G. H. Howard's charge will be delivered. The trial started Thursday morning.

A number of prominent Atlantans sat in the witness chair Thursday afternoon to testify to Harwell's good character. Among these were Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, Walter B. Stewart, chairman of the county commission; County Commissioner George Hope, Edwin F. Johnson, county tax collector; Sheriff J. I. Lowry, Deputy Sheriff Claude Register and Gordon Hardy, F. B. Florence, city tax collector, and Al Martin, prominent automobile man.

Testimony by Eye-Witness. Testimony of Mrs. Bessie Hamilton, clerk in the marshal's office, an eye-witness to the scuffle which resulted in the firing of the shot, was that she did not know whose hand caused the gun to be fired, and that the weapon fell out of Harwell's pocket during the scuffle.

Glass testified that on March 15, Harwell fired him and told him to get out. Glass said he was collecting his papers when an argument started, which led to a fight. During the fight, Glass said, Harwell pulled the gun and started to shoot, when Glass caught Harwell's arm and forced the pistol down, so that the bullet went into the floor.

Glass claimed that Harwell appeared to have been drinking. Glenn Dewberry, custodian of the city hall, said that he met Harwell in the city hall corridor just before the shooting, and that he could see no evidence of liquor at that time. Harwell told him that he was going to fire Glass, Dewberry said.

Denies Firing Gun. Harwell said in his testimony that he did not draw the gun, but that it fell out of his pocket when he was pushed back to a railing by Glass, and that the gun went off in the struggle for its possession. Glass was the aggressor in the conflict, and his language was offensive, Harwell said.

During the trial, it developed that a suit brought by Glass to collect from Harwell $2,074.50 in alleged unpaid salary had been dismissed by Judge Hugh M. Dorsey in city court of Atlanta. Judge Dorsey held that the alleged verbal contract claimed by Glass was not good, according to law.

HARSH BACK IN CELL AFTER EXAMINATION

George Harsh, confessed slayer of two men during a recent series of hold-ups, was back in his cell at Fulton tower early Thursday afternoon following a thorough examination at the hands of five prominent Atlanta physicians, conducted in the hospital on the fifth floor of Fulton tower.

The alleged "thrill slayer" was put through his mental and physical paces Thursday morning by Dr. Frank Eskridge, employed by the defense to conduct the examination of Harsh, and by the following physicians who were called into consultation: Dr. Newdigate Owensby, nerve and brain specialist; Dr. William F. Lake, X-ray expert and physician; Dr. John Funk, pathologist, and Dr. R. R. Daly, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist.

Extensive tests of Harsh's mental and physical condition were made Thursday by the five physicians, but the examination has not been concluded, and will necessitate several more tests, it was said. The five doctors will compare notes, and will announce their opinion of Harsh in a few weeks, it was said.

Harsh was examined by Dr. Eskridge recently at the Eskridge sanatorium on West Peachtree street. The Milwaukee youth was indicted by the Fulton grand jury jointly with Dick Wal. 5018.—(adv.)
